The Richest Young Man in America.

A correspondent of the New York [illegible] writing from Boston, says:

Prominent among the new buildings is the "Sears Building," now going up [illegible] on the corner of Court and Washington streets. It is built of marble, [illegible] finished without regard to expense, under the direction of the trustees of the "Sears estate." This estate embraces a very large amount of property located in the [illegible] business portions of the city, and is valued at a [illegible] dollars. David Sears was [illegible] of Boston. He died on February 7th, 1857 at the [illegible], and left a property valued at $1,000,000. He came to this city from Yarmouth, Massachusetts, when he was 14 years old, to [illegible] as an apprentice in a [illegible] on Long-wharf, where he remained until he attained his majority. Business at that time was depressed in consequence of the embargo, and instead of being idle, he went down to Cape Cod, where he taught school until times were better. Returning to this city, he formed a copartnership with Oliver Hallet, at No. 10 Long-wharf, and about the same time he became a silent partner in the firm of Burnham & Burt. At the end of three years Burnham retired, and Sears continued the business alone until his death. Mr. Sears was a man of great shrewdness, perseverance and industry, and these, coupled with remarkable business talent, enabled him to accumulate a large fortune. Mr. Sears came near passing from earth without an heir to enjoy his immense fortune. He lived a bachelor a great portion of his life, and it was not until he was past the age of 62 that he married. He left one child, a son, born December 25, 1855. Mr. Sears' wife died a few days after the birth of this child. That child is now 14 years of age, and he is popularly supposed to be the richest boy in the United States. After bequeathing $107,000 to his brothers and relatives, and $15,000 to Yarmouth, his native place, for the establishment of a nautical school, Mr. Sears provided that his son should have $2,500 annually until attaining the age of 21, the sum of $20,000 at that period, $4,000 annually until he has passed the age of 24, $6,000 annually till he has passed the age of 30, and $20,000 per annum after that time. The property remains in the hands of three trustees, and the simple interest on the principal, added to the original amount, has reached the sum of 3,300,000, while the assessed value of the real estate bringing this sum is valued at $20,000,000. The trustees have a salary of $5,000 each, and the commissions received from the collections of rents amount to a sum equal to the salary of the President of the United States. Young Sears is now in Europe, where he is fitting himself for the active duties of life.

English Advertising.

The following specimen of advertising is rather ahead of anything we have ever seen in that progressive science:

During the Battle of Waterloo, a young man on horseback stationed himself near the tent of the Duke of Wellington, attentively watching the battle. Wellington turned round upon him suddenly with the air of a man who was looking for somebody, and on seeing a civilian quietly standing and looking on he said rather abruptly:

"Who are you? What are you doing here?"

"My name is Jones," replied the man. "I am traveling agent for the large hardware house of Smith & Jinkens, London. When I learned at Brussels that a battle was imminent, I rode hither to see it, but I am afraid I shall have to lose my pay for my horse, the enemy's balls are in most unpleasant proximity."

"Will you render England a service by taking an order to a certain point I shall indicate?"

"Why not? It is a matter of indifference to me where I go. But will your officers to whom I am to take the order believe me?"

"There—take my ring and tell the General what I am going to tell you now."

The agent took the order, galloped off into the thickest of the battle, and the execution of certain movements of his army gave the Duke the assurance that his order had been delivered. The traveling agent, however, was nowhere to be found, and Wellington instantly recognized his quondam adjutant, and questioned him as to the particulars of his perilous undertaking. Jones told him that, after having delivered the order, he had been tossed about for several hours, and lost his horse by a cannon ball, that, however, he had not taken any part in the battle, since it did not concern him. The Duke smiled, and asked how he could express his gratitude for the service rendered. Jones, by that time made a partner of the house, recommended the same for a government contract; and Smith, Jinkens & Jones have ever since furnished the coal shovels for army and navy use.

Rev. David Macrae, a Scotchman, and recently a traveler in the United States, says:

"The amount of chewing and spitting all over America, but especially in the South and West, is incredible. You find spittoons in shops, in parlors, in cars, in houses of assembly, in Congress, and even in churches, and where there are no spittoons it makes no difference. You will see a man in a court of justice lift the Bible to take oath, give a wild squirt of tobacco juice, kiss the Bible, hand it back, and give another squirt. At Raleigh, I saw Litchford, the tailor, whose apprentice President Johnson once was. Litchford is now marshal of the supreme court, and goes through the form every morning of opening the court. When the chief justice says, 'Marshal, open the court!' Litchford gives a squirt of tobacco, cries, 'Oyez! Oyez! this supreme court is now open! God bless the State and this honorable court!' and gives another squirt. That is the entire ceremony. Numbers of the freedmen are connecting themselves with the anti-tobacco and anti-liquor societies, feeling the necessity for guarding themselves against evils that have done so much harm amongst the white people."

A LARGE MAN.—There died in West Lampeter township, Pennsylvania, Mr. Elias Bowman, aged about sixty years, measuring in height about five feet two inches, and weighing four hundred pounds, being about half as broad as he is long. In his early life he was quite slim, but about thirty-five years ago he commenced growing obese. He was exceedingly sensitive in regard to his appearance, and would never allow himself to be seen by strangers if he could avoid it. For thirty years he had not been one hundred yards away from his house, and for thirty-five he had not visited Lancaster, although living almost within sight of its church spires. He was in easy circumstances, and performed no manual labor. The coffin in which he was buried measured thirty-three inches across and eighteen inches deep.

WATERING STOCK.—"Is it well watered?" invariably inquires the prospector looking for a home, when a farm is offered him. No more important question can be asked. Yet, what thirty years ago was considered a well watered farm—that is, a farm with a crooked creek winding through it, and discharging every field—may now be considered the poorest watered of any. The streams, since the forests were cut away, dry up when the water is most needed, and overflow even banks and fences ("run") generally when water is not needed—like the Irishman's moon, that never shone in a dark night. A good spring or well on the farm is the best—in this can be depended upon—other [illegible] water facilities.

A Canadian newspaper contains the following plaintive advertisement: "Will the gentleman who stole my melons on last Sabbath night be generous enough to return a few of the seeds, as the melons are of a rare variety."

Bennett, junior, is likely to have another yacht race with the English sailors.

GENERAL PARAGRAPHS

By Overland Mail.

A [illegible] — [illegible] Jan. 8.

Hon. George McKee, Republican Congressman elect from the Vicksburg, Miss., District, while on the steamer [illegible] between Natchez and Vicksburg, [illegible] near the stove, was attacked by a band of armed ruffians, one of whom struck him with an iron poker, breaking his collar bone. He drew his pistol and shot one of the assailants in the hip, wounding him slightly. Several shots were fired at him by the party but without effect. Such was the coolness and determination evinced by Gen. McKee, that the whole party were finally routed and driven off the boat. The person who was wounded is the notorious Hewett, who a short time since, was sentenced to the penitentiary by a military commission for tarring and feathering the teacher of a colored school near Natchez. Hewett was afterward arrested by the military authorities, and is now a prisoner in the fort, and Gen. McKee is out of danger.

EVANGELIZATION OF THE WORLD.
[From the Boston Traveller, Jan. 6.]

At the annual concert of prayer for foreign missions, held at Park street church, on Sunday evening last, the prominent talk was the possibility of evangelizing the whole world in the course of the present century. A contrast was instituted between the state of things at the commencement of the century, and what now exists in relation to Christianity; and the conclusion was reached, that with the present facilities for doing the great work of evangelizing the whole world, a fourfold increase of men and means would be sufficient to secure the triumph of Christianity over the entire world. That is, it was considered possible to bring every Pagan and anti-Christian nation in the world under the pervading influence of Christianity in thirty years, provided the increase of men and means was fourfold what are now employed, and the rate of improvement which has marked the first two-thirds of the century should continue during the last third of the century.

THE PISTOLS USED IN THE BURR-HAMILTON DUEL.
From the Newburg (N. Y.) Journal, Jan. 6.

Yesterday we were permitted to handle the identical pistols used by Aaron Burr and Alexander Hamilton in their famous duel at Weehawken. The pistols are now the property of Harry Armstrong, Esq., of the town of Newburg. They have been for many years in the possession of Commodore Salter, U. S. N., recently deceased, and they were turned over to Mr. Armstrong this week. They are of the old style of manufacture, flint locks, mahogany stocks, the barrels carrying a half-ounce ball. The barrels are of the "double and twist" make. They bear the mark of "J. Twiggs, London." The pistols resemble each other exactly. The one which was used by Burr, and which sent the death-dealing bullet, is distinguished from its mate by an X on the butt. These weapons, we are informed, have been used in some ten or a dozen other duels, beside the one which has made them historically famous. We are not informed how many lives have been sacrificed by the use of them. The last owner cleaned them and fired them off once a month regularly while he lived. It is said that they have never missed fire.

WHAT A MICHIGAN WOMAN HAS DONE.
[From the Detroit Post, Jan. 9.]

We would like to hear a good sound argument against this woman's voting: She lives near Dowagiac, in Van Buren county, in the Western part of this State. Eighteen months ago, dressed in men's clothes, she bought 40 acres of land, and promised when her house was completed to reveal her name. In a year and a half, with her own hands, she built a comfortable frame house; grubbed out 14 acres of heavy oak, and made the land ready for the plow, and chopped and split rails, and constructed a fence that is said to be the envy and admiration of the neighborhood. She had eight acres sown with wheat. She has dug a "superior ditch" on one side of her land. She furnishes her neighbors with ax-helves and splint baskets. She dug up a tree, sawed some runners out with a hand-saw, and manufactured a pair of "bob-sleds." She hires a team of her neighbors by doing extra work for them. Two months after her arrival she went into her new house and out of her old clothes, and said her name was Anna Starey. In addition to these remarkable accomplishments, and the conquest of the obstacles we have mentioned, she has had pluck and deftness enough to overcome the disabilities of half a century of age, and the loss of the use of one leg below the knee.

PROPOSED ENFRANCHISEMENT OF THE MASSACHUSETTS INDIANS.
[From the Springfield Republican, Jan. 11.]

The enfranchisement of the Indians of Massachusetts, recommended by Gov. Claflin in his address, is a matter that for many years has claimed attention. But the number of the so-called Indians being small, their condition tolerably satisfactory to themselves, and the obstacles in the way of their complete enfranchisement being thought considerable, nothing has been done, except to have their numbers, condition, &c., reported from time to time to the Legislature. This was done last year by the Board of Charities, under an order of the House of Representatives, introduced in 1867 by Mr. Bird, who for many years has been their friend and champion. It appears that the whole number of Indians and their descendants, who are mostly mixed with African blood, is no more than 1,800 in the State, while the so-called "plantation tribes" number 1,200. Of these the most important are the Marshpee Indians, near Barnstable, numbering some 400, the Herring Pond tribe, in Sandwich, numbering less than 100, the Gay Head Tribe of Martha's Vineyard, about 200, and the other Vineyard Indians, who do not exceed 200. Besides these there are fragments of the Natick, Punkapog, Fall River, Hassanamisco and Dudley Tribes, who are under the guardianship of the State, but rather as paupers than as communities. Among them all there is probably not an Indian of pure blood, for they have intermarried for so many generations with negroes, Kanakas and men of all nationalities, that their genealogy is hopelessly mixed up. They are all recognized, however, as descendants of the former owners of the soil of Massachusetts, and they still own nearly 20,000 acres of land, chiefly Marshpee and on the Vineyard. This property they are not allowed to alienate, nor are they required to pay taxes, nor allowed to vote, except in their own communities, which are managed under a sort of town organization. It is now proposed to make them voters and taxpayers, on the same footing as the other people of the State. This was recommended by Mr. Bird some twenty years ago, by Mr. Earle in 1860, and by Mr. Sanborn last year. The recommendation of the Governor, seconded in the Legislature by Mr. Bird, will probably lead to their complete enfranchisement.

ITEMS.
[From the N. Y. Times, Jan. 22.]

Gen. Geo. H. Thomas emphatically told an army officer who called upon him at his headquarters, the other day that he was never a Democrat.

The Supreme Court, it is authoritatively announced, will not render any decision as to the constitutionality of the Legal Tender Act, until May. It is also said to be beyond doubt that the decisions, when rendered, will be such as to cause the country no fear or harm.

At a recent catalogue sale in New York a copy of Eliot's Indian Bible was sold for the sum of $1,[illegible], and has found its way into a Chicagoan's library at a higher figure. The sum paid would have supplied [illegible] thousands of copies of the Bible to the destitute.

[illegible], who was recently elected a member of the [illegible] Committee [illegible] of the [illegible] city, states that he declines the appointment on the ground that he cannot, without [illegible] to other duties, take part in [illegible]

The State debt of Illinois is now $[illegible], a decrease since 1861 of $[illegible]. The receipts of the Illinois Central Railroad and from the Illinois and Michigan Canal, will, after 1870, be sufficient to pay the State debt by the time it matures in [illegible], without any other tax. Fortunate Illinois.

The report of the [illegible] Commissioner of Emigration shows that 32,627 emigrants arrived in [illegible] last year, [illegible] less than in [illegible] [illegible] in Wisconsin, 2,800 in Indiana, 7,297 in Kentucky, 2,198 in Michigan, and the remainder in Tennessee, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, and [illegible]. There were [illegible] Irish among the [illegible] [illegible] were from the North [illegible] of [illegible].

A correspondent writing from Camden, Arkansas, says: "The crop of this year is a great relief to the people of this State and the southern portion of the Mississippi Valley generally. For three years, in addition to all their other calamities they had bad crop seasons. This year's crop will furnish them food and clothing and money to pay their heavy taxes."

When Charles Sumner was a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate, he refused to visit the State House at Boston, for fear that it would look as though he was trying to influence members of the Legislature in his favor. Since that time all candidates for the United States Senate have followed his example. Such is the force of a noble precedent.

Velocipede building now forms an important branch of trade in Paris. There are not only manufactories of these new locomotives, but foundries where the iron work of which they are composed is cast. One of these employs 2[illegible] workmen, and finishes twelve velocipedes per day for a coach builder in Lyons. A Lyonese velocipedist is willing to take any bet that he will beat the fastest trotter in a race.

Sheriff O'Brien gives rather a curious reason for interfering with the business of the Committee of Congress now in session here to investigate election frauds. He took away some of the witnesses who had been summoned to give testimony, which he alleges would have implicated him and was false. He says that "a constitutional officer has a right to arrest persons when he knows they are about to commit perjury." The Sheriff, we suspect, knows a good deal more about Ward politics than law, or his official rights.

Harvard College has been agitated by discussions in regard to a new president. Several of the young men are already canvassing for Mr. Gurney, one of the assistant professors at the college, and a young man; but great objection is made to him by the elders, because they think the religious interests of the college will suffer under the management, he being a layman and not a professor of religion. These gentlemen advocate the claims of Rev. Professor Peabody, the acting President, and the contest is now narrowed down to between him and Mr. Gurney.

HIRAM SMITH'S
Ophthalmic Panacea!

IS WITHOUT DOUBT THE MOST WONDERFUL EYE HEALER that has yet been discovered.

It CURES the most stubborn and hopeless cases of CHRONIC INFLAMMATIONS, GRANULATED LIDS, FILMS, &c., as has been sufficiently demonstrated during the few months in which it has been brought into public notice. The proprietor is so fully convinced of its INFALLIBILITY that he WARRANTS A CURE or REFUNDS THE MONEY. It can do the eye no harm, and a trial of it is therefore without injury or expense to the patient if a cure is not effected.

It has cured cases of FIVE, SIX, NINE, FIFTEEN and even EIGHTEEN YEARS' standing in Harrisburg, Linn county, Oregon, and its vicinity, to which the following persons will bear witness:

E. B. MOORE,	NATHANIEL BELL,
A. L. WALLACE,	G. K. WARD,
Mrs. MONTGOMERY,	JOHN M. HOLLOWAY,
W. D. PORTER,	ROB'T RAMSEY,

And others in that vicinity.

Persons afflicted with the distressing scourge of diseased eyes are advised to give this remedy a fair trial on the NO CURE, NO PAY and NO INJURY plan.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT [illegible] MARYSVILLE [illegible] The Marysville [illegible] of January 12th says that [illegible] Brown [illegible] of the proprietors of that paper met with an accident on the 9th which [illegible] fatal Mr Brown was walking at the time of the accident upon the south end of the foot bridge [illegible] the piers of the Yuba Railroad bridge, and while so doing the freak [illegible] jumping out the [illegible] below [illegible] The height of the bridge is from 18 to 20 feet but Mr Brown apprehended no danger as the bed of the river is filled with sand—a jump into which being considered by him equivalent to alighting upon a fresh sand bank In alighting however Mr Brown struck the sand in such a manner as to throw his bowels with much force against [illegible] injuries the precise nature of which could not be ascertained last evening The unfortunate man suffered great pain on the [illegible] and was kept under the influence of opiates

Mark Twain in speaking of the way New Englanders mix up the names of their towns tells the following

They tell a story of a stranger who was coming up the Connecticut river and was trying his best to sleep but every now and then the boat would stop and a man would thrust his head into the room First he sung out Haddam! and then East Haddam! and then Haddam Neck and then North Haddam and then Great Haddam! Eat the Haddam! Old Haddam! New Haddam! Irish Haddam Dutch Haddam Haddam Haddam and then the stranger jumped out of bed all excited and says I'm a Methodist preacher full of grace and forty years in service without guile I'm a meek and lowly Christian but I last these Haddams I wish the devil had em I say!

CALCUTTA CREMATION —Recent discoveries as to health in Calcutta develop the fact that in 1867 the number of Hindoo bodies burnt on the river side of that city was upwards of ten thousand, and the number of carcasses of animals skinned was 2 312 There are two great ghauts to which the cremation is confined Nimtallah for the rich and Cossy Mitters for the poor The whole cost of burning a body for the rich is Rs 10 1 2d Within a few years a great improvement has been made in the burning of bodies Formerly the smell was intolerable from the half-charred remains of poor Hindoos, which were lazily mumbled by dogs and pecked by birds The river was polluted by refuse Now the ghauts are walled in, and there is nothing repulsive to be seen

There is food for thought in the story that is told of a young lad who for the first time accompanied his father to a public dinner The waiter asked him ' What will you take to drink?' Hesitating for a moment he replied 'I'll take what father takes' The answer reached his father's ear and instantly the full responsibility of his position flashed upon him In a moment his decision was made and in tones tremulous with emotion and to the astonishment of those who knew him, he said Waiter, I'll take water

DISCOURAGING IMMIGRATION —A young man named John Hoag was hanged at Walkerton Canada for murder on December 14th On the gallows he made an address to the crowd in which occurs the following passage

'All boys take my advice and be obedient to your parents, before you bring disgrace upon them as I have done Especially shun and keep away from whisky fast young women and the United States

A mouse nest feathered with fourteen dollars of greenbacks and fractionals was found in a store at Green Bay Wis whereupon a local paper observes This is a strong argument for the resumption of specie payment as even the lower animals are going wasteful and extravagant under an inflation of paper currency."

PICTURES.—There are very few of the pictures in illustrated papers—we mean to include the whole family of pictorials—which do not present something ludicrous, even upon cursory examination. We frequently see in them men wielding weapons with their left hands, soldiers standing at "shoulder arms" with muskets in their left hands, and a thousand other things never copied from truth. In one of the pictorials we saw the other day a spirited picture of a man gallantly rescuing a lady from the sleeping cabin of a burning vessel. He had evidently snatched her from her berth, for she was only thinly robed in her night chemise and cap; but she had her boots on. We suppose the artist, however, might excuse himself by pleading the great haste and excitement of the occasion. But the newspapers are not altogether alone in this falsity to truth. Some of the great painters have given a touch of the ludicrous to works upon which they bestowed long and elaborate pains. We mentioned the other day the French picture of the "Sacrifice of Isaac," in which the venerable Abraham was represented as about to slay his son with a revolver—it might have been Colt's Navy, if it was not. A similar piece of carelessness, or ignorance of history, or a touch of waggishness, was not long since exhibited by a Russian painter. "Tula" is the name of a great cutlery manufactory of Russia, corresponding with the "Sheffield" of England. The Russian painter produced a remarkably good picture of the "Sacrifice of Isaac," representing Abraham as holding aloft a gleaming blade, on which was inscribed in bold letters, "Tula." The artist had not reflected that Abraham did not purchase his cutlery from the Tula works. Another picture—of what nationality we do not remember—represents the children of Israel crossing the Red sea, every man carrying a musket. Fancy sketches are sometimes ludicrously fanciful.

YIELD OF GRAIN IN OREGON.—We have received a copy of the Proceedings of the State Agricultural Society and Award of Premiums at the last State Fair, etc., in which we find stated some remarkable facts concerning the yield of grain in various places [illegible] Valley. Mr. E. [illegible] states that he carefully measured an acre of land for Mr. C. P. Burkhart, of Linn county, [illegible] which grew 82½ bushels of side oats. On ten acres of the same farm the yield was 780 bushels, or 78 bushels per acre. On ten acres of the same farm, Mr. Burkhart raised 483 bushels of club wheat. One acre of the ten yielded fifty-one and three-fourths bushels. A certificate is given of the yield of oats on the farm of Mr. S. W. Carter, of Washington county. It says ten acres gave 850 bushels of wheat; five acres gave 515 bushels; and one acre gave 115 bushels. The cultivation was good deep spring plowing on oat stubble. The ground had been cropped continuously for seven years. The land was the original land claim of James McMillan. Mr John H. Bazarth, of Lewis River, W. T., raised sixty-seven bushels and nineteen quarts of clean Noah Island wheat on one acre, and on five acres forty-two bushels per acre. Mr. N. E. Goodell, farming on what is known as the A. T. Smith farm of Washington county, raised in one field of wheat of sixty-nine and a quarter acres, three thousand and five hundred bushels, or within a fraction of fifty-one bushels per acre. This was the measure as it came from the thresher, and the wheat upon being weighed overran the standard six pounds to each bushel. We doubt if any better showings than these can be made for any farms on the coast, where the grain has had only the ordinary field culture.

SALEM ITEMS.—We get the following from the Unionist of yesterday: The Willamette river was rising quite rapidly yesterday evening. The water was three feet higher at dark than it was in the morning. From present indications, the water will be as high as it was at the first freshet about a month since......Mr. Miller having become convalescent, a person named Petter was employed to clean out the room occupied by the patient. Upon his reappearance in the community he was given a wide berth among his friends and neighbors......County Treasurer Cooper has paid over to the State Treasurer, E. N. Cook, the amount of the State poll and property tax due from this county, amounting to twenty-one thousand two hundred and sixty-nine dollars and twenty-eight cents......The heaviest rain storm of the season prevailed from Saturday morning till Monday afternoon. More water fell during this thirty-six hour storm than has fallen before this winter during the same length of time......The Unionist calls upon the City Council to pass ordinances in relation to the license and gambling acts, and also providing for a city police force. It says: "The subject of a city police has been canvassed somewhat, and so far as we have heard an expression, it has generally been in favor of employing a police force at the expense of the city. Heretofore this guard has been put on at the expense of private individuals, and while it so far has been efficient, no watch has been kept over the city beyond the limits of the property belonging to the persons hiring the night watchman. We have arrived at that point of greatness where something more is [illegible]. One man is not able to keep track of all that is going on within the city limits.

ROLL OF HONOR.—At the [illegible] of the present term, the pupils in the [illegible] Department of the Harrison Street School, adopted a manual of school duties and regulations, by which they were willing to be governed, it being the duty of the Principal to see that they were strictly enforced. Unless, in his judgment, it were proper and right to pardon an offence, the names of those who violated any of the regulations should not appear on the Roll of Honor. The following is a list of those who deserve [illegible] mention for the month ending Jan 29, 1869: Mary Combs, Maria Carey, Nettie Dudley, Sylvia Fairhurst, Eliza Fullquarts, Annie Hayden, Mary Knox, Virginia Ladd, Alice Robinson, Kate Richardson, Mary Sullivan, James Bruce, Frank Higgins, [illegible] Bird, John Crawford, Edward Cary, Merton Demic, Willie Griffith, Wm. Gilbreath, Herman Graden, Walter Graden, Daniel Halpruner, Winfield Halpruner, Alva Knox, George Lambert, George Loosely, David Stearns, [illegible] Thurman and Fred. Wetmore.

ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE.—During Sunday night an unsuccessful attempt at escape was made by four prisoners in the county jail—persons committed to await the action of the grand jury upon criminal charges. They dug a hole through the stone wall of their cell into the main hall, and then going back to the rear end of the building they began the attempt of going through the ground floor of the Court House. Mr. Ward, the jailor, was awakened by the noise of falling plaster, before they had accomplished their purpose, and the men were again ironed.

STEAMBOAT SOLD.—The steamboat Ann has been for [illegible] tied up at Canemah under attachment for debt. [illegible] learn from the Unionist that Capt. O. Swain and [illegible] H. [illegible] L. C. Adams and S. R. Woodbury, of [illegible] have recently purchased her. It is the [illegible] of the new owners to use her for towing purposes. Her machinery is of forty horse-power and as [illegible] as new. She will be much better adapted to towing than to carrying freight, her capacity for the latter being small.

[illegible] UP STAIRS.—No doubt everybody has heard of the high-toned livery stables of San Francisco, where the [illegible] are kept up stairs. Well, we are to have a similar institution in this city. The proprietors of the stables on the corner of Second and Morrison streets, are fixing up their building to accommodate their horses on the second [illegible]—not, however, on account of high-tone, but to make more room. This strikes us as a sign of business prosperity.

ELECTION.—At the annual meeting of the Portland [illegible] Benevolent Society held at their Hall, in this city, on the 1st inst., the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mr. Terence Rogers; Vice President, Frank Gatens; Secretary, Chas. J. Fitz[illegible]; Asst. Sec., Thos. Hearney; Treasurer, Wm. P. [illegible]

[illegible].—McCormick has an immense stock of valentines, serious, serio-comic, comic, and sentimental and [illegible] illustrated. The young folks should take a look at his show window. There can scarcely be a demand for anything which cannot be supplied from his [illegible]

CHANCE FOR INVESTMENT.—The local editor of the [illegible] offers to go into the vinegar business with [illegible] that feels thus [illegible] inclined, the afore[illegible] local [illegible] furnish the source [illegible] required. He proposes to turn [illegible] into first cl[illegible] [illegible], by simply glancing his [illegible] at it. We guess [illegible] arrangement would work.

[From the N. Y. Times, Jan. [illegible]]

SUE MURPHY.

Sue Murphy was a loyal woman resident in the South during the rebellion, whose property was destroyed by our army, and she now asks from Congress that the government may compensate her for her losses. We admit that the principle can be [illegible] [illegible] loyal citizens who resided within the enemy's territory during hostilities were subject to the chances of war, and liable to suffer its ravages in the same degree as other people. There were loyal citizens in Charleston when Gilmore bombarded it, and in Petersburg when it was bombarded; and their property was necessarily destroyed, without any distinction between it and other property. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] point their guns at rebel houses only, they could only direct their guns against a rebel city, and the fact of its being a rebel stronghold justified the use of whatever means were necessary to its reduction. Of course if right and justice require that we should pay the losses of all residents of the South who now claim that they were loyal, then they should be paid without any inquiry [illegible] about it. But we hold that even on such grounds, we are not called upon to pay these claims. We might have done as has been done in other wars. We might have confiscated the property of rebels and therefrom remunerated loyal people for their losses, but the sentiment of the country was opposed to confiscation, and it was soon evident that nothing could be done in that direction. All we can now do for those who were loyal is to secure them protection, and give them the opportunity of retrieving the losses they have suffered by the accident of their being members of a rebellious community.

THE NEW YORK ELECTION FRAUDS.

The evidence taken by the Congressional Committee in New York in the investigation of the election frauds in the late election will, when made public, show an amount of corruption and demoralization of an appalling character. Judge McCunn has sworn that forty thousand persons were naturalized in twenty-one days, and that in his own court he used to turn out citizens at the rate of two per minute, their examination and cross-examination and administration to them of the oath requiring only that space of time.

GOV. BROWNLOW'S VALEDICTORY AS EDITOR.

[From the Knoxville Whig, Jan. 6.]

The Whig, a journal I have edited for the last thirty years, now passes into other and more able and vigorous hands. As a member of the new company, owning the office, I shall feel a deep interest in the success of the enterprise, and will do all in my power to promote its success. In reviewing my long and eventful career as an editor, I have this to say, that had I my life to live over, I would pursue the same course I have pursued, only more so. If in past life I have been violent on some occasions, my apology is, that, like the Apostle Paul, on many occasions I have fought with "beasts at Ephesus." In taking my leave of many of my readers, I will remind them that before they were born their parents were subscribers of mine. I have, however, the consolation to know that I have always taught both children and parents to hold fast to the forms of sound doctrine; and in defending them I have invariably uttered the words of truth and soberness. To my friends, I wish every possible success in all the undertakings of life. Of my enemies, I have no favor to ask, but am willing to let by-gones be by-gones.

W. G. BROWNLOW.

THE CONFEDERATE ARCHIVES.

[From the Columbus (Ga.) Sun, Jan. 8.]

"Mr. Davis made no disposition of some of the most valuable and important documents placed under his control. The writer of this had under his immediate control the most generally important and interesting archives of the late Confederate Government. In them was embraced its entire political history, from its beginning at Montgomery to the disastrous close at Richmond. The Congress had left it to Mr. Davis to say when, how and where these archives should be moved. Upon application to Mr. Davis, a few days previous to the surrender, as to what disposition should be made of them, we were informed by his private Secretary that Mr. Davis had packed none of the papers of his office for removal, and that he should await future orders. The orders came on Sunday. The papers were packed and sent on the Presidential train. We have an idea that they are present deposited in Washington City."

GEN. GRANT AND THE ARKANSAS KU-KLUX.

[From the Memphis Post, Jan. 7.]

The rebel refugees from Crittenden county, Ark., telegraphed Gen. Grant a request to interfere against the milita in that county, and that he replied that it was not in his power. They then dispatched to know what would be his course if the citizens should drive the militia out of the county, and that he promptly replied that the State authorities would be backed by the national forces. This satisfied them, and they have since quietly subsided. The militia have securely fortified themselves and are conducting themselves in the most orderly manner.

The New York Tribune announces that "a number of stalwart young Treasury clerks have resigned, in anticipation of the reduction of the force in the department," and gives them the following advice: "Young gentlemen, we congratulate you! You are free! You no longer groan under the burdens of office! The free West awaits you! Its boundless prairies yearn for your coming with the shovel and the hoe! Better raise a dozen ears of good corn than twist a thousand rolls of red tape!"

SAN FRANCISCO VS. CHICAGO.—The Call stirs up the San Francisco merchants. It says:

The greater portion of the goods—not produced in this State—which will be consumed on the line of the railroad, will be trasported either by way of Chicago or Vallejo, unless vigorous measures are taken by the merchants of this city, in their collective capacity, to counteract the physical and geographical disadvantages under which San Francisco is bound to labor when the railroad is completed.

The Des Moines Register says the grass-hoppers recently ate up half an acre of tobacco for a man near that place; and when the owner went out to look at it they sat on the fence and squirted tobacco juice in his face.

PIRATES
SAIL UNDER FALSE COLORS!!

THE BEST EVIDENCE OF THE VALUE OF AN article may be found in the fact of its having numerous imitators. Every fine poem has its parodies, every meritorious literary work is subject to plagiarisms, every successful play has been burlesqued; every honest man has his detractors; every genuine dollar has been counterfeited; and every valuable medicinal preparation has its vile imitations. The proprietors of have encountered the usual experience in this respect. Such has been the success of this sterling preparation, that all inferior articles of the kind have virtually been driven from the market. The concoctors of these beverages, finding that this new Tonic has exactly met the public want, and that no further demand exists for inferior preparations, have resorted to the dishonest expedient of imitating either the name or the style of label, both of which have been duly secured by the laws of the State to the proprietors of the I X L Bitters.

In justice to ourselves, as well as to the public who may be deceived by these nefarious practices, we hereby notify all parties guilty of infringement on our rights as well as those who have been buying up our old bottles in order to palm off their own nostrums as the genuine article, that they will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

For the further protection of consumers, we would state that we never sell our Bitters in bulk, but always by the case. Look for our Trade Mark on every bottle, and in ordering the article otherwise than direct from us, be sure to order "Dr. Henley's Wild Grape Root I X L Bitters," and don't allow yourself to be imposed upon with an inferior article.

The Industry and Capital of the Country.

The recent report of David A. Wells, Special Commissioner of the Revenue, on the industry, resources and capital of the country, is a very comprehensive document. It fills twenty-eight columns of ordinary length in the great newspapers and is therefore much too long for us to do more than notice its leading points. He begins by presenting a class of facts which show that the country is rapidly recovering from the effects of war, and resuming that wonderful career of progress and development which especially characterized its history during the period embraced in the thirteen years from 1847 to 1860. On the other hand there is another class of facts which unmistakably indicate the existence of agencies which tend to arrest or obstruct national development, and which foster speculation, idleness, extravagance of living, discontent with moderate and slow gains, haste to be rich, and the spirit of trading as distinguished from the spirit of production."

The favorable signs are such as these: 1. Immigration, which from the 1st of July, 1865, to the 1st of December, 1868, brought about 1,000,000 natives of foreign countries to the United States to establish permanent homes. It is estimated that this immigration has added $80,000,000 directly and $500,000,000 indirectly, to the wealth and resources of the country. 2. A general increase in the products of domestic industry. In spite of the depression caused by the war, the number of cotton spindles in the United States has increased from 5,235,727 in 1860 to fully 7,000,000 in 1868. Full statistics of woolen manufacture are not given; but in seven of the great States of "the West" the number of establishments devoted to this branch of manufacture has more than doubled since 1860, and the capital invested fully quadrupled in the same time. The production of pig iron in 1860 was 913,770 tons; in 1868 it was 1,550,000 tons. The production of copper, petroleum and coal has increased in like proportion. 3. The continued increase in the agricultural product of the United States, whether measured by quantity or value. The cereal crop of 1868 much exceeds any ever produced. The cotton crop of the South falls much below that of 1860, but this loss is in part compensated by the additional production of food in those States. The rice and tobacco crops show a steady increase. 4. Railway and telegraph extension, and the immense increase of freight carried by the various modes of transportion.

The agencies which obstruct national development are mainly those which have grown out of the great war. The Commissioner places an irredeemable paper currency as first among them. To this he ascribes the fact that the working men and women of the country do not receive as much in return for their labor as before the war. That is, the purchasing power of the paper currency is diminished, and wages have not risen in proportion to the general advance in prices. Heavy taxation and a want of skilled labor are other causes which retard the growth of the country. The Commissioner shows that the aggregate wealth of the country is increasing as rapidly as at any former period, but there is not the same increase in the general prosperity. There is an inequality in the distribution of the annual product, which is to be referred mainly to artificial causes. He says:

> The student of political economy would predict a priori that such must be the result of the enforced use of a fluctuating measure of value, viz., inconvertible paper money. It would be predicted a priori that the use of such money involves a most oppressive tax, which falls heaviest upon the laborer and lightest upon the owner of capital. Antagonism is produced where none ought to exist; the capitalist is forced to ch[illegible] an additional profit for the increased risk [illegible] in the use of a false measure of [illegible] consumer of the commodity [illegible] such risk. There [illegible] and no in[illegible] avoid [illegible] must either [illegible] capital entirely [illegible] said that there can be no true, [illegible] conclusion which will not be proved by the facts whenever the theory can be applied. We have given the theory of the effects of inconvertible paper money, and we find that the facts prove it. The rich become richer and the poor poorer.

To remedy this state of things the Commissioner shows that the ends to be attained are mainly three, viz. "First, full restoration of the national credit and resumption of specie payments; second, refunding the national debt at a lower rate of interest, third, reduction of the cost of national production, with a view of enabling the products of American industry to compete on terms of greater equality with the products of foreign nations than is now possible, thereby establishing a system of national protection and insuring stability, increased product, and a development of American commerce."

The "Alabama" Treaty.

Protests are made in many parts of the country against the ratification of the treaty which Minister Johnson has negotiated with England for the settlement of the Alabama claims. The nature of the treaty is such that it is not surprising that any American should enter his protest against it.

A cable dispatch published some days ago gave information that the leading newspapers of London were in great glee about the treaty, claiming that it involves a practical recognition of the rightfulness of Great Britain's position towards the late Confederacy; that it concedes that Great Britain violated no public law in recognizing the Confederacy as an independent and sovereign power, and that it opens the way to the settlement of claims which Great Britain may have against the United States on account of the late Confederate Government. The Pall Mall Gazette hopes that Parliament will take notice of these facts, and act accordingly. The treaty proposes to give us compensation for property actually destroyed at sea by Anglo-rebel pirates, but allows Great Britain to put in counter claims for losses sustained by British subjects in the rebel States. Whether the losses of the English blockade runners are to be entered as a part of these offsets, does not yet appear. But the treaty, so far as we can obtain a knowledge of it, appears to be one of England's own making. It sanctions the course of that power in according to our rebels the rights of an independent and sovereign [illegible] [illegible] our claims to a paltry cash [illegible] subject to offsets in kind, and [illegible] all the graver public considerations [illegible] our Government to commence [illegible] matter. [illegible] have given Gen. Grant's [illegible] object, which is important as [illegible] under the new Administration a [illegible] policy will be pursued. With [illegible] good sense and directness Grant [illegible] proposed treaty is unjust to the [illegible] because it assumes to measure [illegible] inflicted upon this country by the money value of the ships actually destroyed, whereas the chief damage to our commerce was in our ships being driven from the seas by Anglo-rebel pirates. In addition to this the sympathy extended by the English government to the South prolonged the war at least one year. For all the lives lost and money expended for this time England is directly responsible. The treaty proposes to settle all these things by payment of the paltry value of a few ships. Rather than have it settled in this way, we should let it stand open, and when the next revolt occurs in any of the British provinces, pay that country back in such a way as will teach her the beauty of her own principles and mode of action.

Government Receipts and Expenditures

E. B. Washburne, of Illinois, who has been elected to Congress nine or ten times consecutively, is known as the "watch-dog of the Treasury." His vigilance is unceasing. He endeavors to subject to the most rigid scrutiny every scheme for drawing money from the Treasury, and prunes and lops off and cuts down all estimates that he thinks can be so dealt with. He is a very great obstacle in the way of all who desire to get profitable jobs through Congress, and utterly refuses to be placated or diverted from his purpose. The most powerful enemy to the various schemes for Government subsidies is Washburne. On the 6th of January he made a speech in the House, in which he made a strong appeal to that body to keep down the expenditures. He presented a searching analysis of the extravagant operations of Johnson's officials, said that the estimated deficiency of the Postoffice Department of $4,500,000 was created by extravagant contracts for unjustifiably extended mail service, characterized the deficiency for public buildings, amounting to nearly $1,000,000, as a scandalous and profligate expenditure, and after presenting a long list of similar extravagant requests for money, said: "If Congress cannot control the expenditures of the Government, if it cannot curb the executive officers of the Government in spending the public money, and if such officers are to be left practically to determine the appropriations, then I say let Congress abdicate and let the people be saved the expense of keeping up this expensive and somewhat ornamental institution."

Mr. Washburne then gave the items of the Secretary of the Treasury's estimate for the next fiscal year, and said:

> It will be thus seen that $303,000,000 is the amount asked for, and it is for Congress to determine how much of that sum it is absolutely necessary to appropriate to carry on the Government. How much will it be? I will let the permanent appropriations stand as in the Secretary's estimate, although I believe the amount of interest on the public debt is overstated $2,000,000. That amount is $128,690,676, which we must regard as fixed and definite. Then there is the other amount of $158,014,011 74, made up of the items as set out in the estimate. The question recurs, how much can this amount be reduced without detriment to the public service? It is now impossible to state how much the first item for $45,000,000 can be reduced, as the Appropriation Committee has not yet proceeded far enough in the consideration of the various amounts making up the sum, but we shall report a reduction of more than $100,000 from what was asked for the expenses of foreign intercourse, and nearly $1,000,000 from what is asked to go into the legislative, executive and judicial bill. The pensions, Indian department and army proper must remain about the same as stated in the estimates. The Military Academy we reduce nearly $50,000; on the estimates for the army and fortifications $4,684,200 are asked, and I believe we can get along with $1,500,000; for harbor and river improvements and public buildings $848,610; in my judgment $300,000 will be as much as Congress would wish to appropriate under both these heads; for the naval establishment $20,993,414 59 are estimated, but in the navy bill already prepared this is reduced to about $16,000,000, which it is [illegible] will answer every purpose.
> Here are some $15,000,000 [illegible] can be cut off from the [illegible] penditures of [illegible] $303,000 [illegible] Secretary of [illegible] for the total expenditures [illegible] ending June 30th, [illegible] Add to that $2,000,000 more [illegible] expenditures, and we have a [illegible] $290,000,000. It is my belief that the expenditures can be kept down to that point, and that the Government can be administered for that sum, and if that can be done, as it ought to be done, a good showing can be made.
> I have made no estimate in relation to the revenue for the fiscal year, but for the present fiscal year it appears from the Secretary's report that the actual revenue received for the first quarter amounts to $95,000,392, and that the Secretary estimates the next three-quarters at $246,000,000, making the total estimate of Secretary $341,000,000. But Mr. Wells, Special Commissioner of the Revenue, who has given this matter great attention, estimates that it will reach $356,000,000, being $15,000,000 more than the estimate of the Secretary. Assuming, therefore, that we shall not collect more revenue for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1870, than the Secretary estimates we shall collect for the present fiscal year, and assuming that our expenditures will not exceed $290,000,000, there will be a surplus of $51,000,000 for the year ending June 30, 1870; but with an honest collection of the revenue, and without any increase of taxes, I think, we can collect $450,000,000 of revenue. If this can be done and our expenditures can be kept even within $300,000,000, we shall have a surplus at the end of the fiscal year 1870 of $75,000,000. With an exhibit of this character, which is an exhibit that can be made if Congress and the Executive shall act in harmony to that great end, the credit of the Government will be established on an enduring basis, our bonds will go to par in Europe, greenbacks will approximate to gold in value, taxes may then be reduced and the country will enter on a career of prosperity, glory and power without a parallel in the history of nations.

CLEAR AS MUD.—The OREGONIAN wades through nearly a column article to prove that it is entirely consistent in being opposed to negro suffrage three years ago and favoring it now.—Herald.

Certainly. In 1861 the American people were opposed to the abolition of slavery, but three years later they abolished it. No person who knows anything of history, or who has the smallest knowledge of the philosophy of political progress, will hold that because a certain policy was good three years or three centuries ago, it is necessarily the best policy for the present time. That is the highest degree of consistency which adapts its action to the requirements of the times.

THE LATE NEGRO "OUTRAGES." We have full reports by mail of the late difficulties in Georgia. It is clearly established that the troubles were caused by the refusal of "chivalry" to divide the crops with the colored laborers according to the contract. Similar difficulties occurred as to previous crops. The negroes this time declared the crops should not be removed until they had their just share. General Saxton, with two companies of soldiers, went to the scene of conflict, arrested the ringleaders, and divided the crops according to the contract.

> Democratic papers have come to be the champions of Andy Johnson. They approve most that he says and does, and excuse the balance. We would just like to inquire of some of them how they like his recommendation for the annexation to the United States of San Domingo, with its two republics and large negro population. If annexed, its colored people (and the whitest are colored enough) would of course become citizens by the act. This Presidential recommendation, coming in a message, other parts of which are full of negro domination in a country where the whites are to the blacks as eight to one, is one of the latest jokes of the season. What does it mean?—Eastern Paper.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. — Orth will submit to-day a proposition in the House to-day that the territory be [illegible] the Dominican government [illegible] upon application by said Republic to admit [illegible] as a territory of the United States, to be called the Territory of St. Domingo, [illegible] certain terms and conditions [illegible] a Republic [illegible] territory [illegible] the people shall [illegible] government shall be submitted to Congress for approval, and the admission of such territory shall be with the view of the ultimate establishment of the state government, Republican in form, and that any other territory in the West Indies whose people [illegible] government shall apply for admission as territory shall be admitted upon the same terms and conditions as stated. These Republics are anxious [illegible] and the question is no longer whether we [illegible] protect them, but whether we will take them for nothing.

In the House a number of bills and resolutions were introduced, including one by [illegible] to prevent the [illegible] of Secretary [illegible] passage [illegible] by Robinson for the increase of the President's salary [illegible] to pay the sum of $[illegible] to the widow of [illegible] President Lincoln; by Stokes [illegible] the Secretary of the Navy [illegible] the [illegible] Minister [illegible] by Spalding a constitutional amendment changing the mode of the choosing of Presidential electors, allowing each Congressional district to choose an elector; by Higby to aid the construction of the San Diego Railroad, also to regulate the interest of the United States in certain lands at San Francisco; by Keer allowing ten per cent additional compensation to department clerks. Tabled. By Worth a joint resolution relating to the annexation of St. Domingo. After a brief discussion, tabled 110 to 62.

The Senate amendments to the pension bill and military academy bill, were concurred in.

The amendments to the naval appropriation bill, were referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

The Select Committee, on the New York election frauds, was authorized to employ additional clerical force.

[illegible] offered a resolution reciting that as the Secretary of the Treasury refused to confirm, and had dismissed twelve Custom House employees, and names twelve other men for dismissal, that for such action on the part of the Secretary, the House withhold pay from the dismissed officers and ask the Secretary to furnish correspondence on the subject. Adopted.

Schenck, as a test question, moved the evening session to discuss the tariff bill in Committee of the Whole. House refused to suspend; vote, 76 ayes to 46 noes—not two thirds.

Schenck renewed his motion for an evening session to consider the revenue bill. Rules were suspended and it was so ordered from to-morrow, when the House will hold an evening session to consider the internal revenue bill in Committee of the Whole.

Garfield moved to suspend rules for the purpose of amending the Indian appropriation bill, so as to transfer the Indian Bureau to the War Department. House refused to suspend rules—81 to 71.

Morehead moved when the House next goes into Committee of the Whole, all prior orders shall be laid aside and the tariff bill be taken up.

Butler moved to proceed with the business on the Speaker's table. Carried—91 to 63.

Several Senate bills were passed, and the Senate amendments to the House bill increasing the tariff on copper, came up.

Schenck moved to suspend rules to consider amendments now, before acting on the motion. Adjourned.

In the Senate, Pomeroy presented a memorial from the Kansas Legislature for the reimbursement of expenses incurred in repelling invasion by rebel Gen. Price.

Henderson from Committee on Indian Affairs, recommended the indefinite postponement of the bill to transfer the Indian bureau to the War Department.

The Senate considered the Consular appropriation bill and agreed to the amendment striking out the House provision consolidating the South American mission.

Patterson, of New Hampshire, moved to reduce the appropriation for carrying into effect the treaty with England for the suppression of slave trade from $17,000 to [illegible]. Sumner opposed the motion. [illegible] by Slidell in defense of [illegible]. The motion was pending when the [illegible] adjourned. [illegible]

[illegible] Feb. 1.—The English papers say Gen. Dix has succeeded in obtaining regulations dispensing with the necessity of passports for Americans arriving in the South of France. A circular from the Minister of the Interior has been issued declaring that all citizens of the American Union shall hereafter be permitted to enter, travel and sojourn in France on the simple declaration of their nationality. The Times recommends that arrangements be made about the proposed Alabama treaty and that we remedy the defect if we are in earnest about preserving peace. If we want war let us be honest; if we want peace let us embrace the opportunity to secure it, but let us do one or the other and not keep the question open to the exasperation of the people of both countries without doing good to either.

General News.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. James Maker and Edward Riley are the names of the two men arrested last night for the murder of Rodgers.

A Haytien letter of Jan 17th says the pickets were near Aux Cayes. Salnave promised to allow them to plunder the town when taken. A demand from Mr. Seward was received for an explanation in regard to the gunboats carrying the United States flag.

It is stated that the almost individual sentiment in Congress is averse to a ratification of the protocol of the Alabama treaty in its present form. There is no doubt this feeling will find legislative expression when the time comes, and it will be non-concurred. The Senate will never agree to a settlement of the claims on the basis proposed.

BETHEL, Conn. Feb. 2.—Fifteen lives were lost yesterday by the flood and intense cold. Eleven bodies were recovered and four are still missing. Three men standing on the bridge watching the water rushing down, were carried away before they could reach the shore and all were drowned.

Washington News

CHICAGO, Feb. 2. The Times' special says the transfer of the Indian Bureau to the War Department is likely to fail this session, despite the wishes of Gen. Grant.

The contest for the Speakership of the next House is becoming exciting. The friends of Dawes and Blain are conducting a spirited canvass.

The House Committee of Ways and Means will probably report favorably on the subject of renewing the reciprocity treaty with Canada.

The Tribune's special says that notwithstanding the vote by which the resolution for the annexation of San Domingo was tabled yesterday, Judge Orth be[illegible] that it can be carried through before the close of the session.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Investigations by the revenue officers show that the wealthy trustees of churches up town have used money set apart exclusively for religious purposes in investment in stocks through their favorite brokers. One revenue officer estimates at least $2,000,000 in church funds thus invested, while the names of the real capitalists never appear public. A Baptist clergyman is known to have speculated largely in stocks and spends most of his time among brokers. It is said numbers of churches have been mortgaged for purpose of obtaining money to use in stock speculations.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

PARIS, Jan. 31. — The Russian government, through its Minister at Athens, urges Greece to accede to the proposition of the Conference of Paris.

It is rumored here to-day, that the Greek government has yielded and will sign the Protocol.

PARIS, Feb. 1. Gen. Dix yesterday received Hon. Anson Burlingame and suite.

The Princess Clotilda gave a reception this week to the Chinese Embassy.

A report is current that Gen. Dix has protested against the unusual honor with which Jeff. Davis was recently received at St. Cyr, while on a visit to the military schools there. It is officially denied by the French government that the Minister of the United States has made any such protest.

In the Corps Legislatif an opposition member demanded restoration of diplomatic relations with the Mexican Republic, on the ground that French interests suffer by their interruption.

MADRID, Jan. 31.—The French Minister and the Papal Nuncio are about to withdraw from Madrid. All the foreign Ministers, except the Russian, have protested against insults offered the nuncio.

MADRID, Feb. 1.—The first business of the Constitutional Cortez, soon to assemble, will be to establish a Directory to govern the country until a Sovereign is chosen.

A delegation composed of citizens in favor of a Republic and freedom of religious worship, waited upon the ministry yesterday and requested them to issue a decree declaring a separation of Church and State. An immense crowd gathered in the street in front of the Ministerial Palace and clamored for religious liberty. The ministry replied that they would refer the whole subject to the constituent Cortez. The government prohibited large popular demonstrations and the utterance of political cries in the streets as liable to cause disturbance of peace and order.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—A dispatch from Athens, dated yesterday, announces that the majority of the Greek Cabinet have decided to agree to the proposition of the Paris Conference. Four Ministers voted for signing the Protocol and three, including Balgaris, present Minister, against.

VIENNA, Feb. 1.—The Reichrath has adopted a bill allowing trial by jury in all cases of violation of laws regulating the press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 1.—A telegram asserts that Morris, American minister, instructed by Secretary Seward, offered the Sublime Porte mediation of the United States in the Grecian trouble.

STATE ITEMS.

We see it stated that the Washington county authorities have [illegible] the west side railroad bonds to the amount of fifty thousand dollars.

One thousand dollars of the State tax due from Multnomah county was paid on Monday last in half-dollar pieces. They made an extensive pile of metal.

The Salem paper learns that there will be a new postoffice opened on Howell Prairie, as soon as the bonds of the P. M. shall be filed in Washington City and returns had. This will be a great accommodation to an extensive neighborhood, that has heretofore been without mail accommodations nearer than Salem.

From ex President Dufur, of the State Agricultural Society, we have a copy of the proceedings of the Society for the year 1868, containing the award of premiums and the opening address of the President. The proceedings make a pamphlet of seventy pages, and is the neatest and most creditable publication of the kind we have seen.

A correspondent asks "If the Governor should create the large bill of expense necessarily incurred by special elections and extra session, what assurance is there that the Democratic majority will do any better than it did before?" There is no assurance whatever. They held the longest session ever held in the State, and did nothing but mischief. They neglected their duty to the State and blathered in the interest of the "Lost Cause;" and so they would do again.

A correspondent at Eugene City, speaking of the late emeute at Oregon City factory, puts the matter in this light. "Somehow the whole thing has rather a ridiculous look. Suppose some grower or growers of sassafras, which is used by many as a very palatable substitute for "store" tea, should get up indignation meetings and denounce the "mercenary" persistence of those old fogies who won't give up Oolong and Young Hyson. In short, what right have we to import anything from Japan or China, since every such importation, whether labor or other commodity, supplies just so much of a market that must otherwise be supplied by white men?"

QUININE.—The preciousness of this remarkable febrifuge was never better illustrated, perhaps, than during the late war, when bold blockade runners risked so much to carry supplies of it to the camps of the suffering Confederates. Quinine is the active principle of the bark of certain species of trees which grow on the slopes of the Andes and Cordilleras. Regarding its origin as a febrifuge, various stories are told. One tradition is that some Indians, who were suffering from intermittent fever, drank water from a pond in which bark and twigs from trees of the kind referred to, were immersed. They found relief from the decoction, and introduced it into their primitive pharmacology. So long ago as 1638 an Indian medicine man treated for fever, with this specific, the wife of the Viceroy of Peru, and cured her. The fame of it then spread over to Europe, and it soon became an article of commerce. A subtle manner of preparing it is said to have been imparted to Louis XIV, by an Englishman named Talbot, and the secret is supposed to remain undiscovered by medical men to the present day. The almost superstitious esteem in which quinine is held by sufferers from ague, can best be realized by those who have visited the malarious districts of wooded swamp, in which so many hardy lumbermen prematurely succumb to the febrile destroyer.

SMALL BOY'S COMPOSITION. This is what a small boy says of tobacco:

"Tobacco grows something like cabbage, but I never saw none of it boiled, although I have eaten boiled cabbage and vinegar on it, and I have heard men say that cigars that was given to them on election day for nothing was cabbage leaves. Tobacco stores are mostly kept by wooden Injuns, who stand at the door and try to fool little boys by offering them a bunch of cigars which is glued to the Injun's hands, and is made of wood also. Hogs do not like tobacco, neither do I. I tried to smoke a cigar once, and it made me feel very sick. Tobacco was invented by a man named Walter Raleigh. When the people first saw him smoking, they thought he was a steamboat. As they never had seen a steamboat, they were frightened. My sister Nancy is a girl. I don't know whether she likes tobacco or not. There is a young man named Leroy who visits her. I guess she likes Leroy. He was standing on the steps one night, and he had a cigar in his mouth, and he said he didn't know as she would like it. And she said, Leroy, the perfume is agreeable. But the next morning, when my big brother lit his pipe, Nancy said, 'Get out of the house, you horrid creature, the smell of tobacco makes me sick.' Snuff is Injun meal made out of tobacco. I took a little snuff once and then I sneezed."

Charles Reade is about to open a theater. The Plays will not all be Foul, it is hoped.

RAILROAD ITEM. While some men are trucks to bear the burdens of the earth, others are content to bear the [illegible] others are driving wheels which give life and motion to all with whom they are connected. Kohn & Fisher, the leading dry goods merchants of Portland, are the driving wheels of trade in this city. They conceived and carried on to completion a work nobler than the Pyramids, grander than the gardens of Nineveh, or the walls of Babylon. For these works [illegible] a monument for the dead, neither the gratification of a luxurious taste, but it is a new pathway for purchasers, a [illegible] the [illegible] of families and the hearts of men.

CHANCE OF NAME!

MERCADO & [illegible] SUCCESSORS TO Mercado & Seuly, have been obliged for their own protection and the safety of the public, to change the name of their celebrated Bitters to

MERCADO'S

Native California Wine

BITTERS

We refer to the following affidavit on an injunction suit formerly pending between Mercado & Seuly [illegible] vs. [illegible]:

P. Sainsevain, being duly sworn, says: That the article known as Sainsevain's California Wine Bitters was manufactured by Mercado & Seuly's, about the month of March 1866, with out the said Sainsevain having any concern in the manufacture thereof. The deponent has always [illegible] Mercado & Seuly as the Sole Proprietors of the Sainsevain's California Wine Bitters.

Notwithstanding the above affidavit the said P. Sainsevain is putting up a compound under the name of Sainsevain's California Wine Bitters, representing it to be the same as our celebrated Bitters which we have been manufacturing at [illegible] in immense quantities since 1860, and also affixing a nearly similar label to that used on our genuine Wine Bitters. BE NOT DECEIVED. Send for

NATIVE CALIFORNIA WINE BITTERS,

And you will obtain the same popular beverage so favorably known since 1860. Beware of Counterfeits! Purchasers of our Wine Bitters are requested to observe the familiar yellow label and see that the words, "MERCADO & SEULLY, SAN FRANCISCO," are engraved on the Government stamp pasted over the cork of each bottle. This is the only effectual security against the counterfeit imitations.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

NEW REMEDIES, NEW [illegible]

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

616 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

Horrible Disease.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a [illegible] existence from the effects of secret indulgence, [illegible] virus absorbed into the system! Look at their [illegible] ted and disfigured faces and their broken [illegible] tions, disqualifying them for the happiness of [illegible] or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends attend to those who are [illegible] any of these horrible life-destroying [illegible] that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, who has made private disease his especial study for [illegible], and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and their power. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions the consequence of self abuse. This solitary vice or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania, and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating the disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN.

Or those who contemplate marriage who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written guarantee binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use. Ten Dollars sent in registered letter or through Wells Fargo & Co.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware [illegible] quacks and pretenders, who [illegible] dupe the unwary. Some of [illegible] whose names are to be [illegible] newspapers of San Francisco [illegible] and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, [illegible] office keepers, [illegible] San Francisco Directory, and you will [illegible] but you will find their [illegible] look at the Directory [illegible] to avoid imposition [illegible] nothing and [illegible] advertising physicians [illegible] bogus there is no safety [illegible] know who and [illegible] people by [illegible] pretended patient's [illegible] persons who may [illegible] diseases that be [illegible]

VANCOUVER ITEMS.—We clip the following items from the Register.—By [illegible] General Orders [illegible] the [illegible] the Commissary Department at Vancouver will devolve on Lieut. Forse, 18th U. S. Cavalry, the Dep't having been withdrawn from the [illegible] of Maj. [illegible], Chief Commissary.....We learn that Lancaster Lodge, I. O. G. T. is taking a new start, having received a large accession to their membership during four weeks last past.....We learn that the [illegible] taken in the Columbia bottom below Vancouver are filled with swan, geese, ducks, &c.....A party of gentlemen started out last Tuesday and returned on Wednesday with a wagon load of fine game.....There is a vacancy in the office of County Assessor, caused by the removal of [illegible] Knight.....Mr. [illegible] of this city has [illegible] a piece of quartz, found four and one-half miles from here, near Lewis River. We are informed by judges of such things that silver appears [illegible], and a magnifying glass discloses particles of gold. The ledge is ten feet wide and [illegible] twenty feet in length.....We understand that a majority of the property holders below town have donated half the land to the Puget Sound and Columbia River Railroad Company, on condition that the road crosses at this point.....Ambrose Patton, of Cowlitz county, was, on preliminary examination before Judge Rice, committed for default of bail in the sum of five hundred dollars, to appear at the next term of the District Court at Vancouver, upon the charge of assault with intent to murder James Bishop.

FROM OREGON CITY.—The Enterprise publishes a report of the City Seminary for the term ending Friday 22d ult., from which we learn that the school has been in prosperous condition. The aggregate number of pupils on the roll in the Primary Department was fifty five; average attendance, fifty two. Intermediate Department, total sixty four; average attendance, fifty six. Higher Department, total fifty-[illegible]; average, forty eight. Total in all Departments, two hundred and thirty four; average attendance in all, [illegible].....The Enterprise says: "We have as yet had no small pox in this place or vicinity as far as we know, and hope we may not. We are informed, however, that the measles prevails in certain portions of the city.....On Monday evening last the Fire Department of this place went into an election which resulted in the election of Mr. A. J. Marshall as Chief Engineer of the Department for the ensuing year. We hope to see this movement looked upon favorably by the City Council."

"JOHNSON'S SUGAR CURED HAMS."—Everybody in Oregon and California is familiar with the reputation of "Cross' sugar cured hams." It is as common, now, to see them specially quoted in the provision market reports, as to see bacon, eggs, butter, or any other article for which there is always demand. Mr. Cross made his hams a specialty till he secured them a high reputation, and now he heads the trade of the Pacific coast in that article. Yet Mr. A. H. Johnson, of this city, is, this winter, putting up a quality of sugar cured hams not one whit inferior in any respect to Mr. Cross, and we may soon expect to see in the daily market reports "Johnson's sugar cured hams" quoted with the same regularity and flourish as are Cross' sugar cured. Mr. Johnson will ship about three hundred of them by the Continental.

THE MINSTREL PERFORMANCE.—We learn from persons who attended the Minstrel performance on Saturday evening, that the entertainment was of a better order than we have usually had here, of that kind, and that the audience was well pleased. The Herald, which we [illegible] is au fait in such matters, says: "The show is no bilk; on the contrary, a really amusing and chaste entertainment." The principal performers are Ned Ward, Tom Lafont, Pete Emerson, Mr. Foster, Johnny O'Neil, Ed. Pearce and Sam Raymond—a decidedly strong combination. They will give another entertainment this evening. Messrs. Lafont & Ward have spared no expense in preparing these entertainments and we hope they will receive substantial encouragement.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT—DEADY, J.—Proceedings, of Saturday, Jan. 30th:

In the matter of Randall & Sunderland. Petition filed by San Francisco creditors, praying that they be adjudged bankrupts. Order to show cause, returnable Saturday, Feb. ——. Also injunction allowed against defendants and John R. Foster, assignee, enjoining them from interfering with assets or goods of Randal & Sunderland. Debts, $12,000.

In the matter of J. M. G. Kallich, a voluntary bankrupt; on motion of counsel for creditors and upon filing affidavit showing cause, creditors had further time to file objections to final discharge.

It is estimated that seven-tenths of all adult ailments proceed from a diseased and torpid liver. The biliary secretions of the liver overflowing into the stomach, poison the entire system and exhibit the above symptoms. After a long research we are enabled to present the most remarkable cure for these horrid nightmares of diseases the world has ever produced. Within one year over six hundred and forty thousand persons have taken PLANTATION BITTERS, and not an instance of complaint has come to our knowledge. It is the most effectual tonic and [illegible]ble stimulant, suited to all conditions of life. Inquire of your druggist in regard to it.

SALEM ITEMS.—From the Unionist we learn that the first number of the Democratic Press will be issued on Saturday next......The match hunting parties, out last week, killed only three deer, three grey squirrels, sixty-five pine squirrels, forty-five pheasants, seventeen ducks, four larks, two rabbits, two quails, five robins, five [illegible] and one beaver, scoring a total of three hundred and fifty three and a half points. A hunting club is to be organized next Saturday......The concerts given last week by amateurs were great successes pecuniarily. The Marshal has begun to notify the citizens that they must clean up their yards and alleys.

FIRE ALARM.—About half past three o'clock yesterday afternoon, an alarm of fire occurred, calling out the engines and the usual crowd of spectators. The engines ran to the corner of First and Morrison streets, but, after very anxious inquiry, we could not find that there was any fire anywhere, except at the tips of sundry cigars and in the boilers of the steam engines. The firemen, [illegible], soon came to the conclusion that that was all, and went off and put their machines away.

[illegible] EDITORS.—We see by the up country papers that Bro. Ireland, of the Enterprise, and Col. Dow, of the Commercial, are tramping around among their "constituents" of the Wallamet valley. Van, of the Register, says Ireland called on him the other day looking "as handsome as a red wagon." Dow gets no compliments, [illegible], we suppose, he is not handsome in any degree. We envy both of them, in being able to get away from their treadmills for a few days.

LONE FIR CEMETERY.—The Commercial of Saturday says: "The firemen have allotted to them 100 feet square, for burial purposes, of Lone Fir Cemetery. Mr. [illegible] Kiernan to day completed the grading, grubbing, sowing to clover and general preparation of the spot intended for the final resting places of our firemen. The contract for the erection of a stone monument and its enclosure by iron chains will soon be let."

THE BARK OSMYN.—Capt. Johnson, who came up as pilot on board the Brewster, reports that the bark Osmyn, the second vessel to arrive in the direct line from New York to Portland, was off the bar, with a pilot on board, on Saturday morning. She will probably arrive here by to-morrow night.

AMERICAN EXCHANGE, SAN FRANCISCO.—Passengers bound to California would do well to consult the advertisement of the American Exchange Hotel, San Francisco, to be found this morning under the head of "New To-Day."

FASTEN YOUR DOORS.—During the past week there were several petty burglaries and several attempts to enter houses, in this city. It would be well for people to look to the fastenings of their doors and windows.

A NEW FLOURING MILL.—The Courier says that Mr. M. B. Hendrix, of Yamhill county, has determined to erect a flouring mill at Wheatland, on the west bank of the Wallamet, a few miles below Salem.

DRUNKEN INDIANS.—There were several drunken Indians about town on Saturday, and we learn that drunken orgies are frequent at their ranches below the city. Who sells them the whisky?

VELOCIPEDES.—It will be seen by a new advertisement, this morning, that the Golden State Iron Works, San Francisco, have gone into the manufacture of all descriptions of velocipedes.

ARRIVAL OF THE BREWSTER.—The brig Brewster, Paul Corno, Master, arrived at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, from San Francisco, in tow by the steamer Okanagan from Astoria.

P. H. A.—The third monthly instalment on shares of the Portland Homestead Association, is now due and payable at the office. See advertisement.

SAILED.—The steamer Geo. S. Wright sailed for Victoria, at 4 o'clock P. M. on Saturday. She took a heavy cargo of produce.

FOR SAN FRANCISCO.—The steamship Continental, Metzger, Commander, will sail for San Francisco, at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

THE BARK ALMATIA was reported off the bar on Saturday.

RAILROAD ITEM.—While some men are trucks to bear the burdens of the earth, or furnace-grates to bear the fires and to be consumed in obscurity, other are driving-wheels, which give life and motion to all with whom they are connected. Kohn & Fishel, the leading Dry Goods merchants of Portland, are the driving-wheels of trade in that city. They conceived and carried on to completion a work nobler than the Pyramids, grander than the gardens of Nineveh, or the walls of Babylon; for their work is not a monument for the dead, neither the gratification of a luxuriant fancy, but it is a new pathway for purchasers, a link to bind the chain of families and the hearts of men.

THE CHEAPEST AND BEST DRUG STORE in Portland is the Oregon Dispensary, No. 73 First street. Prescriptions compounded, and delivered at the House, at 100 per cent. discount on former prices in this city. Dr. Loryea will visit the sick free of charge.

LORYEA & KALLENBERG, 73 First street.

SAND RIDGE, LINN CO., OGN., JAN. 13, 1869.

I have used all kinds of medicine for Croup, in my family—Healey's Balsam, Cherry Pectoral and Allen's—to no effect. I then tried PENN'S ROYAL EXPECTORANT, and to my surprise it gave instant relief and a final cure.

[illegible]

Instead of sinking as was stated last week, we [illegible] and taking out large quantities of ore. We further understand that [illegible] They have a large lot on the dump at the mill, and teams are running constantly keeping up the supply.

While [illegible] saving up a stake to go on, consequently the loose money that usually finds its way into saloons and faro banks, and finally into general circulation, is being carefully laid away to the damage of trade.

An incident occurred in the Ada Elmore mine on Saturday forenoon that created quite a sensation at the time. A man named John Curran, in passing through the tunnel, accidentally dropped his lighted candle into a box containing forty pounds of giant powder, which immediately ignited, causing a most disagreeable and sickening stench. There were seven men in a stope immediately over the scene of the accident and others both north and south in the works, all of whom were at once made aware of the mishap and rushed to the shaft, where they were hoisted out as fast as possible, but all more or less suffocated by the fumes. Several were unable to resume labor, and two men, Chas. Wagner and John Strain, were still confined to their beds on yesterday. To the uninitiated it may be well to say that giant powder will not explode without some concussion to set it off, but burns up as quietly as so much dry saw dust on being ignited with a candle or match, but the stink pots of Egypt were as sweet smelling incense compared with the smudge that arises from it.

LAXITY IN THE PUNISHMENT OF CRIME.—Among the causes of the demoralization of society to which we have lately referred, the manner in which criminal justice is administered is one of the most prominent. If we look at the laws for the punishment of crime, and the penalties which they affix, there is no reason for complaint, but when we come to the administration of those laws in the trial of alleged offenders, we find them in many cases, especially where criminals surrounded by a certain class of influences are concerned, practically inoperative. It cannot be denied that there is in this country a respect accorded to even meretricious success in politics and money-making which prove more efficacious to relieve criminals who possess it from the legal consequences of their offenses than in any other of the great countries of the civilized world. Besides this, the wisest and the best laws are of no avail unless they are sustained by public opinion. It can scarcely be asserted that public sentiment in this country is entirely sound and free from morbidness on the subject, for example, of capital punishment in any case, and especially of its infliction where the killing has been in avenging injuries to the honor of woman, or where it has been provoked by some great insult or indignity, even though not involving peril of life or limb. In such cases, and in all others where the accused occupies a certain social station, the most frivolous pleas are often used in the extenuation of his crime, so as to give the jury some sort of a pretext and palliative wherewith they can satisfy their consciences so as to render a verdict of acquittal. There is none of that certainty in the administration of justice which is essential to the repression of crime. It is in a State precisely as it is in a family, where the best rules are unavailing unless it is made certain by daily experience that they will be enforced with impartial and unvarying uniformity. And here it may be added, that no influence attaches a people more to their country than a fair and equal administration of justice. It is this which gives to the English people their characteristic tenacity of attachment to England, and is strong enough to overcome the alienating influences of its social distinctions. In the practical operations of the laws in England those who are charged with crime—the peasant and the peer, the rich man and the beggar—stand upon the same footing, and there is a certainty that if they do not receive the reward of their deeds, it will not be on account of any difference of station.—Baltimore Sun.

SAIL UNDER FALSE COLORS!!

THE BEST EVIDENCE OF THE VALUE OF AN article may be found in the fact of its having numerous imitations. Every fine poem has its parodies, every meritorious literary work is subject to plagiarisms, every successful play has been burlesqued, every honest man has his detractors, every genuine dollar has been counterfeited, and every valuable medicinal preparation has its vile imitations. The proprietors of have encountered the usual experience in this respect. Such has been the success of this sterling preparation, that all inferior articles of the kind have virtually been driven from the market. The concoctors of these beverages, finding that this new Tonic has exactly met the public want, and that no further demand exists for inferior preparations, have resorted to the dishonest expedient of imitating either the name or the style of label, both of which have been duly secured by the laws of the State to the proprietors of the I X L Bitters.

In justice to ourselves, as well as to the public who may be deceived by these nefarious practices, we hereby notify all parties guilty of infringement on our rights as well as those who have been buying up our old bottles in order to palm off their own nostrums as the genuine article, that they will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

For the further protection of consumers, we would state that we never sell our Bitters in bulk, but always by the case. Look for our Trade Mark on every bottle, and in ordering the article otherwise than direct from us, be sure to order "Dr. Henley's Wild Grape Root I X L Bitters," and don't allow yourself to be imposed upon with an inferior article.

MONDAY MORNING . . . . FEB. 1, 1869.

e Chicago Platform and Proposed Amendment

The platform adopted by the Republican party at Chicago last May affirms that under the Constitution the right to regulate the exercise of the elective franchise belongs to the States. This is a truth which is held by ninety-nine per cent of the American people. It was once a truth that under the Constitution the right to hold slaves existed. The Republican party affirmed that right but afterwards the Constitution was amended and the right to hold slaves in the United States denied. Such right does not now exist. In like manner it is now proposed to amend the Constitution so that the right of suffrage shall not be denied to any male citizen of the United States over twenty-one years of age. It is our opinion that an amendment of this nature would do much to tranquilize the country, inasmuch as colored citizens vote in many of the Northern and all of the Southern States, and until they are allowed to vote in all the States, the whites of the South will entertain a notion that they may disfranchise them a thing which can not be done, because the country will never allow it.

But because many Republicans favor this amendment to the Constitution, such twaddling papers of the Herald charge them with repudiating the Chicago platform! Now, the very fact that Republicans propose such an amendment is a recognition by them of the doctrine that, as the Constitution now stands, the States have the right to control the suffrage. But they propose to amend the Constitution, so as to take this right from the States and fix it permanently in the fundamental law of the nation. As the Constitution now stands, the doctrine of the Chicago platform is correct; but does this afford any reason why the Constitution should not be changed? All parties once recognized the constitutional right of slaveholding; but was this any argument why the Constitution should not be amended so as to abolish slavery? On the Herald's principles, it would be impossible for the people to amend the Constitution in any way whatever.

The Herald, with a chuckle of delight, reproduces the following from the old files of the OREGONIAN:

> The members of Congress have repudiated the negro suffrage idea at several different times during the present session. The Union party of the United States has repudiated it. The party is not for negro suffrage.

Three years ago the above paragraph appeared in this paper. And there is not a word of it but was strictly true. During the session of 1865-66, Congress "at several different times repudiated the negro suffrage idea." It was almost a year later when Congress passed the act giving the Southern blacks the right to vote. That act was passed with great reluctance. The justice of it was obvious; but Congress and the Union party hesitated to take a step which would awaken the prejudice of the people on a subject so delicate and yet so important. Every effort was made to secure reconstruction on the basis of the Fourteenth Amendment, without negro suffrage, but without avail; and Congress, as a last resort, gave the blacks of the South the elective franchise. Every one is acquainted with these facts. What this paper said three years ago in the paragraph the Herald has quoted, was therefore perfectly true. But circumstances compelled the Republican party to take a forward step. When the war began, the party had no idea of abolishing slavery, and made a declaration to this effect. Nevertheless it was forced by the irresistible progress of events to proclaim emancipation. Three years ago it did not intend to push the question of suffrage; but it afterwards discovered that impartial suffrage in the South was as imperative as the abolition of slavery had ever been. Neither could be avoided. No man, no party, can absolutely control and direct the march of political events. There is a higher power. And now, as affairs are in their present shape; as colored citizens vote in the South and cannot be divested of the franchise; and as there will always be trouble about it in those States so long as portion of the North refuses the colored citizen this privilege, we think it would be a great step towards peace and harmony to amend the Constitution in the way proposed and take the negro, once for all, out of politics. If the opposition can find nothing better to urge against the proposition than the parrot cry of "inconsistency," they may as well give up their efforts. This has been their principal line of opposition to every measure of the last ten years; and their opposition has not been remarkably successful.

THE "NO POLICY" PRESIDENT.—It was a great card for the Democrats during the Presidential campaign to designate Grant as a "no policy" candidate, a man without ideas or opinions on political subjects. The same persons are now condemning him for the opinions he is reported to have expressed upon different measures, and asserting that he is already "running" Congress and the Supreme Court and will soon have all the departments of Government under his autocratic control. An Oregon paper that represented him during the campaign as a nobody, as a dolt who had not brains enough to form an opinion on any subject of importance, has, of late, been complaining of his alleged manifest intention to dictate the whole policy of the country. It has asserted that he has indicated to Congress the course to be pursued in all things, and that body tremblingly and slavishly obeys. If we may believe such oracles as these, the "no policy" man is "coming out strong."

A BACK.—Chapman don't go on with his review of Gov. Woods' veto of the Chinese tax bill. No doubt he has had enough of it. We had hoped that he would attempt to show that the bill was not in conflict with the Constitution of the United States or the treaties with China. But he appears to have given it up. It is easy to promise but sometimes very difficult to perform. Let it be observed that the Governor's veto is vindicated and Democratic rant effectually silenced. In this, as in other measures, Republicans stand on established authority, while their opponents have nothing better than shaky cob-works under them.

WHERE THE TROOPS ARE.—The Secretary of War informs Congress that the number of troops employed in protecting the Missouri river traffic and the Union Pacific Railroad, and otherwise guarding that section of country, is 26,814. This is two-thirds of the whole military force of the United States. It therefore appears that the story to the effect that the greater part of the army is employed in "oppressing the South" is all moonshine; there are but few troops in that part of the country scarcely more in proportion than in the other States.

Financial Prophecies

It is thought at the East that the opinion of the Supreme Court on the legal tender act will soon be delivered. The question is frequently asked, What would be its effect on greenbacks if the Court should declare the act unconstitutional? The variety of answers which this question receives shows how little people know about problems of finance, and indeed how unfathomable they are by theory alone, without the plummet of experience. From the manner in which the matter is discussed by the press we find that one set of men are arguing that such a decision would send gold up "a flying," and greenbacks down out of sight. You see, say this class of financiers, the legal tender character of the greenbacks gives them one-third of the value they now possess. Take that away and they would fall from seventy odd cents on the dollar, their present worth, to forty-five or fifty cents instanter. Besides if coin be declared the only legal tender a tremendous demand for it will be at once created, debtors must have it whatever the price. This would of course force gold up, or what is the same thing, still further depress greenbacks, which would probably range as low as forty cents on the dollar.

So much for the "bear" argument; now hear what the "bull" says. If the Legal tender act be declared unconstitutional greenbacks must rise so rapidly and certainly as to constitute them the very best investment in the market. For if gold and silver are the only legal tenders, the Government in paying out greenbacks for its debts, did not discharge those debts at all, as heretofore held. It merely gave its note to pay legal tender "on demand." Therefore the holder of a greenback can "demand" gold or silver for it at the treasury at once, and Government will be bound to pay it or give gold bearing bonds for it, or suspend or repudiate. It will not repudiate, and, rather than commence a formal suspension, it will either pay the gold for the greenbacks at once, or, if not able to do that, will be forced to redeem them with a new issue of gold bearing bonds. Therefore, the holder of greenbacks is the man who would realize most from the decision that the legal tender act is unconstitutional. Greenbacks would bound to par in gold at once, or nearly so. These views, it must be owned, are slightly conflicting, and our readers can take their choice of them.

"Me and Breck."

The most excellent Democrat, John C. Breckinridge, is about to return to Kentucky. That State seems not to have decided whether she will kill the fatted calf on the return of the prodigal son, or not. The editor of the Frankfort Yeoman, who was a Colonel in the rebel army on Breckinridge's staff, sadly says:

> What we ask for General Breckinridge is not from his enemies, but his friends. He will return to Kentucky in the course of time—a few days or a few weeks will see him among his accustomed walks in Lexington. He seeks no ovation, and, in his behalf, we request that there shall be no demonstration beyond the personal and individual marks of welcome. That he stands foremost in the affections of the people of Kentucky no concealment need be made, but even those who would most dearly love to testify the popular sense in his behalf must recognize the respect due to his wishes in this regard. He will come to Kentucky realizing that, politically, his career is closed indefinitely.

This is sad, very sad indeed. Why cannot Kentucky take the "foremost man in the affections" of her immense Democratic majority to her heart of hearts? She will do it. She will reward him for the services he rendered in attempting to defeat the late "crusade against the rights of the South." It is said that Breckinridge is very poor. Perhaps he will apply for his back pay as a member of the United States Senate. Though his fortunes may seem to have fallen very low, we know there is no man whom the "Democracy" of Kentucky and Oregon would more readily support for the highest position in the nation. They would rejoice to fly the old flag of Breckinridge and Lane. "Me and Breck." may come to the surface again, and again require a political burial. Who knows? We are assured that the "time-honored principles" are not to be abandoned, and who so fit to carry the standard as these tried veterans?

It Makes a Difference.

In the following article from the Stockton (Cal.) Independent there is a lesson which may be received with profit by those journals in this State, which are continually assailing Methodists and other ministers, who believe that freedom and humanity are essential parts of religion:

> The San Francisco Examiner is in no respect more consistent than in the austerity with which it customarily exacts of the generality of Christian ministers the strictest observance of priestly propriety. It has even been known to unbend its dignity and diverge from its habitual decorum, so far as to apply such epithets as "blood hounds of Zion," and the like to those ministers who displayed such bad taste and lack of magnanimity as to declare that "Jehovah had triumphed," because certain people, hitherto chattles, were free. In strict keeping and consistency with these past utterances concerning such "howling Dervishes" of the priesthood as Doctors Cox, Briggs and Stebbins and the Rev. Mr. Daly, is a quotation which we find in the Examiner of January 16th, from a letter written by a Tennessee parson to a San Franciscan. Our cotemporary, in publishing the following extract, commends and indorses the writer as "a true (Methodist) minister of the Gospel of Christ," when he says: "After fighting Democracy for fifty years, I am at 70 years of age standing in the Democratic ranks and doing battle against the blackest, most corrupt party with which the annals of any country was ever cursed. We have met an almost Waterloo defeat—have perhaps elected a Democrat to Congress from this district, all else disaster. You know my moderation—but I am now for war to the knife, with the scabbard thrown away and the knife to the hilt. I had rather that I, my wife and children were under the sod than under negroes, be they white or black." From which we are led to infer that even one who, for fifty years, has been a rampant, ranting "blood hound of Zion," may be regenerated and washed clean enough to become a lovely Democratic lamb. "War to the knife and the knife to the hilt, with the scabbard thrown away, against negroes, black or white," are strictly millenial expressions from "a true minister of the Gospel of Christ."

CALLING NAMES. The following is the only reply which the Herald attempts to Mr. Bellinger's damaging exposure of its position as an organ of a "ring."

> There is a whole column in yesterday's OREGONIAN devoted to the Oregon Herald.
> "A tumble-bug went lumbering o'er the plain,
> Which brought right down a thunderous shower of rain."

Mr. Bellinger undoubtedly got into a nasty mess; but it was accidental, and the said nasty mess therefore should not call him a "tumble-bug." He got out of it as quick as he could.

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.—The Army of the Potomac begins to move again. It is to follow the example of the Western army, and have a grand reunion. A preliminary meeting will be held at Washington on the 22d February to take steps in the matter. As such Democratic Generals as McClellan, Hancock and Slocum are to participate, we hope this reunion will not be denounced so bitterly as was the one held at Chicago a short time ago.

The schooner Louisa Simpson, building at Yaquina Bay, is about ready for sea, and will run regularly between that place and San Francisco.

Greenbacks not Taxable.

The rule that all forms of Government indebtedness are exempt from local taxation, and that the constitutional principle preventing the taxation of bonds covers the whole ground and must apply to every method in which the Government chooses to borrow, was recently affirmed again by the Supreme Court in the decision declaring greenbacks untaxable. This decision is to the effect that greenbacks are a "loan" and that the States cannot meddle with the credit of the Government in that form any more than any other. Readers will perceive that greenbacks are not exempt from taxation by law of Congress, for there is no law on the subject, but they are exempt on constitutional principles, the same as all other forms of the debt. Will those who have been condemning Congress for exempting Government securities from taxation take notice of this? The Sacramento Union gives the following as the history of the case lately decided by the Supreme Court:

> This case came up from New York city, and is the residuum of the original attempt to tax the bonds owned by banks of that city. The argument, by Redman, Peckham and Burrill for the banks, and by Richard O'Gorman and O'Conor for the city closed December 16th, and from the Washington correspondence of the Herald under that date we gather a summary of the facts. In 1865, the New York Legislature taxed the banks on their capital, allowing no deduction for United States bonds. The tax on the latter was sustained by the State Court of Appeals, but decided to be unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court. The Legislature then changed the law slightly in its terms, but still practically taxed the bonds as part of the capital of the banks, the result being another suit and similar appeal and decision. Then the Legislature in 1866, "imposed a tax essentially to the same extent as before," not upon the banks or their capital, but upon the stockholders to the amount of their respective shares. This device proved a success, both State and Federal Courts sustaining the tax in that form. Then came a demand for restitution from the banks which had voluntarily paid the first unconstitutional tax. The Legislature passed an Act requiring the city "to refund all taxes paid by the banks on any portion of their capital invested in United States securities exempt from taxation." The city officials under the law recognized the exemption of all bonds and interest-bearing Treasury notes payable at future periods, but resisted the claim of exemption for "certificates of indebtedness issued to creditors of the Government, under Acts of March 1 and 17, 1862," (bearing six per cent interest and payable one year from date), and also upon greenbacks or other legal tenders which it was claimed were put on the same footing as coin by being made "lawful money." The State Courts again sustained the position that local taxation was applicable, and the case thus came before the Supreme Court. The recent decision settles the question in all its forms, and it is now established that no law of Congress is necessary to exempt any form of Government loan from local taxation, since the Constitution itself provides for such exemption.

GRACEFUL ALLUSION.—The Herald assures its readers that it "will continue to ring out the same notes that it has sounded for the past two months." In view of Mr. Bellinger's testimony in regard to the management of that paper, this allusion to the "ring" is graceful indeed.

STATE ITEMS.

The Committee on Statistics of the State Agricultural Society, have recommended that five thousand copies of the report on the resources of Oregon, presented by A. J. Dufur, be printed in pamphlet form for circulation in other States.

The Gazette says that on the western borders of Benton county, toward the coast, there are large tracts of valuable lands which are unsurveyed and even unexplored. Quite a number of claims have been taken there recently, and others will be taken in the spring.

Referring to the action of the Oregon City Ku-Klux and the comments of the Democratic press of this State, a California paper says: "It is a poor invitation for capitalists to go to Oregon. The State will remain poor and unpopulated through her own folly."

Cross, of Salem, must "manufacture" immense quantities of hams. Almost every retail grocer in San Francisco advertises, "Cross' Oregon Hams; large lot just received." Judging from the advertisements, we should think that Cross sends a ship load every week.

The State Agricultural Society will make an attempt to bore an artesian well on the Fair Grounds. As Beriah Brown is establishing himself at Salem, we suggest to the Managers of the Society to engage him to bore it with some of his interminable articles about "ourself" and the "resolutions of '98."

The Unionist says: In arranging the list of premiums for the year 1869, at the meeting of the Board of Managers, held this week, some fifty premiums have been added to class 10, in the ladies' department, and a provision made offering a ten dollar silver cup to every lady taking six or more first premiums, this being an addition to the premiums offered and paid on all the articles named.

The Unionist learns that a detective has traveled through Oregon from one end to the other, spying out those dealers who are selling goods without being properly stamped. It is said he has found offenses, the fines on which will amount to about $20,000, at $50 the offense. The fines of one firm, in Southern Oregon, will amount to $1,200. The detective, whoever he may be, will make a pretty good thing out of this, as he gets half the fines imposed.

A letter to the Advocate from Jackson county has the following: Nothing is doing, nothing going on, there is but little travel even through the country, and the citizens generally stay at home. No one wishes to see his neighbor, and should one man meet another in the way, each will try for the "windward," finding that difficult, they begin to back off, perhaps strike up a conversation in regard to small pox, bent some what abruptly away, and thus pass on with the happy reflection of a narrow escape.

A correspondent of the Advocate queries as follows: Not long ago the Herald of Portland called the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church "politico religious charlatans"—"white checkered gentry"—"reverend mountebanks." Again, on the 21st inst., that paper called the Rev. Dr. Pearne a "political scallawag." Query: How much money is paid by Methodists in Oregon in the way of subscriptions and advertisements to circulate such information among the people? Such allusions read by the children of members of our church must inspire confidence in the religion of their fathers.

REMARKABLE SET.—Old farmer Gruff was one morning tugging away with all his might and main at a barrel of apples, which he was endeavoring to get up the cellar stairs, and calling at the top of his lungs for one of his boys to lend him a helping hand, but in vain. When he had, after an infinite amount of sweating and puffing, accomplished his task, and just when they were not needed, of course, "the boys" made their appearance.

"Where have you been, and what have you been doing, I'd like to know, that you could not hear me call?" inquired the father, in an angry tone, and addressing the eldest.

"Out in the shop settin' the saw," replied the youth.

"And you, Dick?"

"Out in the barn, settin' the hen."

"And you, sir?"

"Up in granny's room, settin' the clock."

"And you, young man?"

"Up in the garret, settin' the trap."

"And now, Master Fred, where were you, and what were you settin'?" asked the old farmer of his youngest progeny, the asperity of his temper being somewhat softened by this amusing category of answers. "Come, let's hear."

"On the door step, settin' still," replied the young hopeful, seriously.

"A remarkable set, I must confess," added the amused sire, dispersing the grinning group with a wave of the hand.

Chloroform was discovered about thirty years ago, and almost at the same time in Europe and America, by distilling a mixture of alcohol and chloride of lime, and subsequently rectifying the product.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—A slight shock of earthquake was felt at 11.37 A. M. to-day.

A grand velocipede tournament took place at the Mechanics' Pavilion yesterday, the Rev. Dr. Scudder carrying off the laurels.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 30.—A German named Fidel Hinger, was found dead in his house on Grant street, this morning. Upon a table near his bed, was found a bottle of strychnine. Dr. Shordike, who examined the body, gave it as his opinion that death was caused by strychnine.

The certificate of incorporation of the Stockton Land Association, was filed in the County Clerk's office to-day. The objects for which this company is formed are to engage in the business of purchasing, selling and improving Real Estate in the county of San Joaquin, California. Capital stock, twenty four thousand dollars, in one thousand dollar shares. Herbert E. Hall, of this city, has been appointed Secretary of the Association.

Ann Griffin sues Wm. McCoslin for $10,000 damages, for alleged breach of promise.

Capt. J. R. Burns sues Mr Robert J. W. Brummargin, J. E. Brett, Gus. A. Brett and W. G. Brett, to recover fifty thousand dollars damages, for alleged false imprisonment. The suit grows out of an action against plaintiff, as master of the bark Mary Bell Roberts, to recover $113,167, alleged to have been collected by Capt. Burns as agent, and misappropriated by him. Said case resulted in Burns' favor.

Catherine Geary sues Wm. Gratten to recover five thousand dollars damages, for personal injuries alleged to have been sustained by her in falling over a precipice on defendant's premises.

James McCoy was garoted on Pine street yesterday morning, and robbed of twenty dollars and a gold watch and chain. Dr. Boone and Augustus Knauer were arrested, charged with being the guilty parties, and the property was recovered.

FROM THE NORTH.

VICTORIA, Jan. 30.—The Colonist news from Alaska to the 24th inst., received by the Wyanda, which arrived here last night on her way to San Francisco for repairs, she having run on a rock not laid down in the chart. There has been serious trouble with the Indians at Sitka. One of the chiefs disarmed a sentry and ran off with his gun; a guard of soldiers was sent down to the village and were defied and the red flag hoisted. The next morning Gen. Davis got ready to bombard the place, when the chief surrendered. A few days afterwards the sentries fired on a canoe full of Indians, leaving the harbor contrary to orders, and killed and wounded seven, one of them a woman.

A ball was given by the officers of the Wyanda to the officers of the Garrison on the 22d inst., and passed off very happily. Forty ladies attended.

The Wyanda is coaling to day and sails at six to-morrow evening for San Francisco.

"THE ANNEXATION OF IDAHO."—Under the above head a Nevada paper treats the subject as follows:

It is understood that a movement will be made in the present legislature to induce congress to extend our boundaries to the 44th degree of latitude north. This would about cut the territory of Idaho in two. It is further contemplated to run our eastward boundary as far as the 112th degree of longitude. This would take two degrees of territory from Utah and would add about thirty thousand people to our census. Should congress consent to this partition of the two territories, and its absorption by Nevada, our State will then possess one of the most extensive boundaries on the map. The Central Pacific Railroad would divide it about in the center from west to east, and the Idaho and Colville roads would cross the Central at right angles, about midway between the eastern and western boundaries. The root then of our future railway system would form an exact cross, rendering branches to any point short and feasible. There will scarcely arise any objection from the people of Idaho to the annexation by Nevada of this large slice of their territory. Notwithstanding the extensiveness of that territory she would not have sufficient population in twenty years from now to be admitted as a State, and her destiny cannot be very encouraging as a territory. It is possible that in a few years another grand State may be formed out of Montana, the balance of Idaho and a portion of Utah, but in the meantime the southern portion of Idaho will flourish as an incorporated part of Nevada. It is not within the range of probability that Utah will ever be admitted as a State. Her social problem will be solved by territorial partition and absorptions so that we shall find little or no opposition in congress to our proposition to move the eastern boundary of Nevada two degrees further into the present Mormon domain. On the new map, Nevada will figure splendidly. Her agricultural resources will be second to those of no other State in the Union, and the system of railway transportation now developing so rapidly will render farming in Nevada as profitable as it is in California. Besides this great permanent industry, our metal and mineral resources will be amplified and increased in value by the additional facilities for extraction and reduction which will follow in the wake of our new prosperity as a great State.

Responsibility to the People

The three prisoners who were arrested in Canada a few weeks ago, on charge of having formed part of a band of express robbers in Indiana and who were surrendered by the Canadian authorities on receiving a pledge from the United States officials that they should be safely delivered to the State of Indiana—that is, that they would not be lynched on the way—have been lynched since their delivery. The United States Government kept its express promise faithfully, but the State of Indiana broke the promise implied in its receiving them back, by failing to provide for their safe custody and fair trial, and letting them be taken out of their cells by a mob and hanged on the staircase. It appears that the sheriff received formal notice from the lynchers that they were coming, and the Governor knew that a lynching organization was in existence and had already done execution on other members of the same gang of robbers, but neither of them took any precautions against an attack, and the jail was accordingly stormed and the prisoners taken out with very little more difficulty than if they had been in an ordinary framed dwelling-house. Moreover, it appears that these last hangings make up the number of those committed by the "regulators" to thirty, or thereabouts—and two or three, at least, of the victims have been innocent.

This on the surface seems a strange story, but behind it lies a stranger story still. The robbers whom the lynchers have been putting out of the world are the leading members of a gang who have been operating on a grand scale all over the State of Indiana during the last year or two, committing a good many murders in the course of business, and at last undertaking, and in one or two instances successfully, to board railroad trains in the night, and remove and plunder the safes of the express companies. The last attempt failed, owing to the provision of a guard by the express company, but a conductor was mortally wounded in the affray. The robbers were not only numerous and well organized, but appear to have been persons of means and position. One family, the Renos, whose male members occupied a leading position in the band, and have been nearly all killed by the "regulators," lived in "genteel" style on a farm of their own, the "ladies" being very well bred people, taking the popular periodicals and playing on a piano of the best modern construction. It was found, too, practically impossible to bring them to justice, numerous and audacious as their crimes were. What the difficulties were, we may guess from our experience both in this city and in Western New York, where, not long ago, a family of robbers and their confederates for several years set the law at defiance, and, if we remember rightly, had at last to be surprised in the night and burnt out by a vigilance committee; but these difficulties are more readily imagined than defined. They consist in great languor or want of interest in the subject on the part of the sheriff or district attorney, an exceeding fastidiousness about evidence and a tender regard for the liberty of the citizen on the part of justices of the peace, great timidity on the part of witnesses and juries, and strong humanitarianism, or disposition to "give the poor devil another chance," on the part of judges. The general result has been that criminals possessed of plenty of money, and forming part of large organizations, have enjoyed almost complete impunity, as far as the law was concerned, in Indiana. Nay, even after several of the gang had been lynched, the survivors were bold and powerful enough to threaten or attempt retaliation, and the lynchers assert—though this is doubtless an exaggeration—that it has its ramifications in Ohio and Michigan and Canada.

Of course this was a state of things to which no civilized community could be expected to submit very long. A vigilance committee consisting of 700 members, it was said, was soon formed in Indiana, and they made short work of the principal robbers. That is to say, thirty men suspected of crimes of various sorts have been seized by a mob, generally in the night, and dragged to a tree and strung up, without enquiry or shift, and left hanging there. The same number of executions within the same period, in any State, by judicial sentence, after a solemn trial, and after the use of all the methods prescribed by reason and experience for the discovery of truth and the protection of innocence, would have filled the country with horror and thrown the opponents of capital punishment into convulsions. The leading humanitarian papers would have had sensational reports of each execution, with short biographies of the victims, accompanied by genealogical tables containing the principal cases of mental and moral weakness amongst their ancestors, both in the male and female line. We should have had meetings to discuss the right of society to take away life, and the governor would have "been handled without gloves" for not exercising the pardoning power, and the sheriff himself would probably have had some unpleasant light thrown on his personal history. As it is, the affair has not elicited more than a few narrative paragraphs, of comment there has been little outside the State. The State in which these lynchings have occurred is not a border community, in which the machinery of justice has to be aided in its work by volunteers. It is one of the wealthiest, most highly civilized, and patriotic and intelligent in the Union. There is none in which the love of order and law is stronger; in fact, the lynching is a proof this. It showed the determination of the people to have security somehow, and to make the place terrible to evil-doers; yet the more civilized and the more moral a community is in which such departures from legality take place, the more barbarizing and demoralizing they are, and the more earnestly do they call for criticism and enquiry.

Similar occurrences have taken place in Ohio within the past year, the causes being the same—the often and long-continued failure of the courts to do their duty in criminal cases. We think it may be fairly said that there is no State at the North in which the democratic movement of the last twenty years has had full swing, in which this same tendency to inefficiency on the part of the courts and sheriffs and district attorneys is not to be observed. The theory on which the democratic movement triumphed in the constitutions of Northern States was that by making all or nearly all officers elective, and making their terms of office short, their sense of responsibility to the people would be deepened, and the guarantees for their good behavior would be strengthened. In point of fact, the very reverse has proved to be true. The sense of responsibility of all officers has been almost destroyed, and nearly all the pre-existing guarantees for good behavior have been removed. Responsibility to "the people," when "the people" is numerous and busy, and when the number of officers is great, and elections frequent, is a synonym for responsibility to nobody. "The people" in a community like ours will not occupy itself in watching the conduct of sheriffs and judges and constables and district attorneys, and other officers, from day to day. Its means of information are limited; the criticisms of the party press untrustworthy; the officer's means of defending himself are ample; the trouble and expense of calling him to account before the expiration of his term of office are more than any individual can encounter, and more than associations of individuals are ready to undertake as long as terms of office are so short. Long before he could be got out of office by extraordinary means, he goes out in the ordinary course of things. The punishment of his bad behavior is therefore left, in practice as well as in theory, to the whole body of the electors, to be executed at the polls. But here again the system of short terms and general election secures him complete impunity.

There is no community in the world in which the whole body of the people think and talk more about politics, and are able to form, on the whole sounder judgments on political questions, than this; but the number of competent and honest men who will give their time to the working of the political machinery is very small. If you make the machinery very complicated, calling for constant and minute attention, competent and honest men will not give any attention to it at all. Now, this is exactly what most Northern States have done. By making every office elective and every term of office short, the mere working of the machinery and selection of the candidates have become things too formidable for the body of the community to attend to, and it does not attend to them. The work has fallen entirely into the hands of a small body of politicians, with a code of morals of their own which the community abhors, and interests of their own which are hostile to those of society; and it is to this class, and not to the people, that the office holders are really responsible, and the office holders, judges included, know it. The caucus system and the discipline of party organization have both grown up into buttresses of the power of this class. The one gives them the power of [illegible] candidates and the other the power of forcing the people to vote for him. It is with the caucus, then, or rather, with the class who [illegible] compose it—that the officer has to [illegible] make his peace [illegible] very [illegible] cases [illegible] the class himself in many cases he is such a powerful politician, like General Butler, for instance, [illegible] he selects the caucuses [illegible] organizes the tribunals [illegible] which [illegible] the people have less to say in the matter than [illegible] treaties with foreign powers.

Moreover, as regards the judges and district attorneys elected for short terms, it has to be borne in mind that [illegible] are the salaries kept [illegible] the best men [illegible] of which we trust farmers will before long perceive the real nature [illegible] the great [illegible] robber or express robber [illegible] the burglar or cracksman, are almost always active politicians, or can readily become so. We venture to say that there is hardly a violator of the law, on a great or small scale, in this or any other State, or a knave of any sort, who does not take a keen interest in the "questions of the day," in so far as they affect candidates for office. There are very few districts indeed in which they do not have it in their power to put a judge off the bench or prevent the re-election of a district attorney, either by working through the nominating conventions or at the polls. Therefore, a judge or district attorney does not need to be a bad man, in the ordinary sense of the term, to be afraid of them or to be languid in his pursuit of them. He needs simply to be human, with a man's hopes, fears and responsibilities. They make him, when they stand at the bar, think of his family, of his old age, of his creditors, of his broken up practice, whether he will or no, and the majority of our State constitutions place him at their mercy, and yet mock him with a form of words, in which he is asked to believe that the eye of "the people" is upon him, watching his zeal, his devotion, his integrity, and that when, after five or six years of faithful service, the time comes for him to be turned adrift, "the people" will meet him at the door of the court and send him back again to his work with applause. The horrible reality is, that "the people" know little about him, vote "the straight ticket," through zeal for "the main question," and when they find thieves multiplying beyond endurance, and brigandage covering the community like a net-work, rise in mobs and hang right and left without judge or jury, as in Indiana, or else shrug their shoulders and go on making money, as in New York.

The remedy is happily simple. It consists in paying better, in making the tenure of judicial officers permanent; and in so diminishing the number of elected offices that the public attention can be concentrated on a few officers, and these few be thus made really responsible for the working of the machinery of government. Public opinion will undoubtedly run in this direction for the next twenty years, whether the desired change come within that period of time or not. We notice in the letter of a correspondent of the New York Times that the new Democratic candidate for the office of warden at Sing Sing is the "Honorable Homer Nelson," and that "his prospective appointment is hailed with favor by the convicts generally." The logical extension of the system of appointment now in use with regard to most State offices would require the election of this functionary by the convicts. His appointment by the Governor robs them of an "inalienable right."

The Civil Service Bill.

In the House of Representatives, on the 8th of January, Gen. Logan addressed the committee in opposition to Mr Jenkes' civil service bill, discussing the whole matter, and declaring that he desired "the business of this Government to be discharged with the utmost intelligence, fidelity, and dispatch," and upon the principle of scrupulous economy, and that the employes shall receive such compensation as will make them proof against dishonesty. He would vote for any practicable measure to bring about such a reform. But he was immovably opposed to the establishment of a life tenure in office—a system so opposed to the genius and spirit of our institutions and our people, and regarded with so much apprehension by the debaters on the Constitution. In this connection he alluded to the debates upon giving a life-tenure of office to the judges of the Supreme Court, showing the apprehension then entertained, and that the same danger was as much to be apprehended now as then. He held that the people are the rulers of the country, and that their Representatives have no right to create a power that is not liable to their decision, which is final and paramount to all other authority. He argued that the appointment of subordinates or the nominations for appointments are just as much a part of the duty of Representatives as any other resting upon them, and that a share in those appointments is as much a time honored right of the people as any other they have. Every Administration was held responsible for the policy it pursued, and had therefore a right to unanimity in all its departments. He pictured the condition of the Government at the breaking out of the rebellion, with all its smaller offices filled by secessionists of the deepest dye, who communicated to the enemy all the plans of the Government, and successfully thwarted our movements on every hand. He argued that heads of departments had no time to investigate charges of error in subordinates, and to follow out the technical and slow procedure of commissions or courts to remove unworthy incumbents, and that it is the duty of legislators to shape laws so as to include the contingency of war as well as peace. In contrasting this Government and that of the monarchies of France, England and Prussia he pictured the difference between the part of an American freeman in his Government and that of a [illegible] who has no voice in the decrees of the powers that be. The proposition of the bill to place at the head of the bureau the Vice President of the United States, making him the supreme ruler and dictator, and final judge upon the application of employes, he regarded as a means by which the public patronage might become subservient to one man who knows no superior, whom even the Senate could not control, and which power, in unworthy hands, might be wielded to the total destruction of the will of the people being the very essence of centralization of power in one man. The whole bill he declared to be an opening wedge to an aristocracy in this country which, once established by law, would result in two schools in this country, one for the military and the other for the civil education, which schools would monopolize all avenues of approach to the Government, and might in the event of another war in this country prove a most formidable enemy. He appealed to the friends of those who died on their country's altar that this Government might be preserved republican in form and republican in name, to see that the law should never again adopt another code that would make men less free.

How to Retain a Good Face.—A correspondent has some good ideas on the importance of mental activity in retaining a good face. He says: "We were speaking of handsome men one evening, and I was wondering why K. had so lost the beauty for which, five years ago, he was so famous. 'Oh, it's because he never did anything,' said F.; 'he never worked, thought or suffered. You must have the mind chiseling away at the features if you want handsome middle-aged men.' Since hearing that remark I have been on the watch to see whether it is generally true, and it is. A handsome man who does not, [illegible] grows flabby, and the fine lines of the features are lost; but the hard thinker has an admirable sculptor at work, keeping his fine lines in repair, and constantly going over his face to improve the original design."

The annual sales of merchandise in Boston amounts to nearly $[illegible], [illegible] second to the sales of New York. Other American cities report aggregate sales as follows: Philadelphia, $[illegible]; New Orleans, $[illegible]; Chicago, $[illegible]; Baltimore, $[illegible]; Cincinnati, $[illegible]; St. Louis, $[illegible]; San Francisco, $[illegible]; Louisville, $126,000,000; Milwaukie, $110,000,000. None of the remaining cities reach $100,000,000 of sales annually.

General Paragraphs.

By Overland Mail.

From the New York papers Jan. [illegible]

A correspondent ridicules the political regenerators of Cuba. In his opinion it must be a fine state of affairs when the people "of whom eighty-five per cent can neither read or write claim to be the progressive party of Cuba." This evidence is calculated to enlist our sympathies in their favor. So much the more necessity for them to get out of the slough of ignorance and dependence. In this instance at least ignorance is in their favor.

Chicago is felicitating herself over the first blast furnace there. The first pig has been cast. The capital stock of the "Chicago Iron Ore Company" is $[illegible]. The main building is two hundred and four feet long and fifty wide, costing about $[illegible]. The maximum capacity of the works will be from thirty-five to forty thousand tons daily. Sixty hands are employed, divided into gangs of thirty each. The ore will be from Lake Superior and Illinois coal will be used—if it can be.

The collapse of the Charleston Mercury is one of the most significant "signs of the times." It has been the organ of the extreme Southern sentiment from the days of Nullification to the close of its own career. Its hatred of the Union and of the North was intense, and the termination of the rebellion, with the dawning of the bright day of freedom and peace, was more than it could bear. It died of grief, superinduced by hunger and mortification. It is a pleasant omen. Peace to its ashes!

The General Missionary Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church have apportioned to home and foreign missionary operations this year the sum of $[illegible],000, of which $275,566 have been appropriated to foreign nations, and the remainder to home missions and miscellaneous expenses, the latter amounting to about nine per cent of the whole expenditure, or deducting fifty thousand dollars, which is appropriated to the contingent fund, the cost of management is less than six per cent of the whole anticipated receipts.

Compressed air, it is asserted, will soon be used in New Orleans as the motive power of the street cars, since the necessary machinery is fast approaching completion. Atmospheric railways have heretofore proved failures. The apparatus consists of a cast iron tube of almost forty inches diameter, having a slit of about two inches wide on its upper side. The slit is covered by a flexible flap or valve, and furnishes an opening through which the mechanism of a piston, working within the tube, is connected with the carriage.

The establishment on the river Uruguay, South America, for the manufacture of Liebig's Extract of Meat, it is stated, has the largest kitchen in the world. The building covers an area of 20,000 square feet, or nearly half an acre. In one hall there are four meat cutters, which can dispose of 200 bullocks each per hour. There are twelve digesters, in which the meat is boiled by steam. They can hold altogether 144,000 pounds of beef. About eighty oxen per hour are actually slaughtered for this immense manufactory of meat extract.

Of the originally John Brown party who captured Harper's Ferry and set up a Provisional Government for Virginia, but two are now living—Owen Brown, who lives in Western Pennsylvania, and Osborne P. Anderson, a colored man living in Canada. Realf, Luke Parsons, Gill and others associated with it, directly and indirectly, each won some distinction during the war, and are now living. Geo. P. Sidd, one of those who escaped, died at the taking of Roanoke Island, Sergeant of a New York Regiment. Barclay Coppic, then a Lieutenant in a Kansas Regiment, was killed at Platte Bridge, Mo., through the destruction of a railroad train by guerrillas.

John Scott, the new Senator from Pennsylvania, is one of the ablest lawyers of that State, and possesses a thoroughly trained mind that grasps questions with a severe logic and large intelligence. In the considerations of great questions of policy and statesmanship, he is capable of standing among the foremost of the body to which he is elected. Laboriously devoted to his profession, he is best known in his own State, where his fine abilities and elevation of character are appreciated at their true value. When John Scott takes his seat in the United States Senate, as the successor of Charles R. Buckalew, that body will be stronger in every quality that can confer usefulness, dignity and statesmanship.

The best civil service in the world is that of Prussia, conducted as it is rigidly on the examination principle. The Prussian postoffice is better managed than that of any other nation. The English is probably the second best, the Austrian third, we are speaking now of great States only. Our own is, we need hardly say, the worst; yet, when one reflects that every functionary in the Prussian or English postoffice depends for the retention of his place solely on his capacity to do its business, while in the United States a man's capacity has nothing whatever to do either with his getting a place or keeping it when he has got it, we ought to feel on the whole rather proud of ourselves because under such circumstances we can get any letters carried at all.

Those who place France at the apex of civilization will be gratified by contrasting the tone of the Paris press in its views of Mr. Burlingame's mission with those expressed by the English. Before Mr. Burlingame had set his foot on English soil, the English press greeted him with irony and sarcasm, and some of the leading journals even forgot themselves so far as to indulge in personalities. In striking contrast to this undignified course, the Patrie welcomes the Embassy, and prepares the public for its visit by explaining Mr. Burlingame's object. The Paris press has never had occasion to laud a French commander simply because he wreaked a petty revenge on a hundred or so of poor Chinese, consequently it can afford to be honest in its expressions concerning the Embassy and its aims. They express the belief that the commerce of the world will be improved by the additional markets China affords, and viewing the Embassy as the forerunner of a fresh development in the commercial affairs of the world and a grand international achievement, it can honestly afford to pray for it.

The Tribune, alluding to the opposition Professor Morse encountered in introducing the telegraph, asks: "Was not this Cave Johnson, who looked on the telegraph with as much intelligence as a Caffre would upon a printing press, one of the most remarkable men of our country? And have we not Cave Johnsons in still greater abundance and prominence to-day?" The query is pertinent. Sometimes we think the stock is degenerating. There is not a hamlet in the country free from the malign influence of ignorance, conceit and prejudice. Whatever is incomprehensible or difficult in the eyes of these dead weights in the current of progress, is pronounced visionary, absurd, impossible. One of these stumbling blocks occupying a responsible position retards true progress more in a year than all his grand children and great great grand children can atone for in a century. [illegible] to argue, remonstrate, reason or explain to these blockheads, whose positive dogmatic manner causes genius to shrink as much in amazement at their inconceivable ignorance as though fear of their senseless ridicule. The history of the telegraph, as related by its inventor, should teach our public men a lesson.

From an official statement of the savings of the colored people up to December 1, 1868, through the agency of the trust fund companies instituted since the war in the South, we learn that in twenty-four branches of the freedmen's savings banks—all located in the Southern States except one in New York city—the aggregate savings of the colored people have been $922,889 for eleven months, up to December 1, 1868, against $[illegible] for the same period in the previous year—an increase of $[illegible]. The total number of depositors is [illegible]. The branch at Washington shows the largest aggregate deposits and increase. On December 1, 1867, the deposits in the Washington concern were $[illegible], and on December 1, 1868, they were nearly doubled, footing up $[illegible]. The increase at Baltimore was nearly in the same ratio; the previous year's deposits amounted to $[illegible], and this year they stand $[illegible]. At Beaufort, South Carolina, the increase was from $48,618 to $77,738. At Memphis the advance was from $18,675 to $32,793. Figures like these, with nearly a million dollars already saved by [illegible] thousand persons hitherto almost wholly unacquainted with money, speak better than words, and give point to the moral of that solid independence founded upon an account in the bank.
